15 DEAD AS REDS AND HITLERITES COME TO GRIPS

Many Scores Wounded in Week-End Fights in Germany.

NAZIS DRAW GUNFIRE WHEN THEY PARADE

12 Slain in Altona Clash; Casualties Reported at Six Other Points.

Berlin (Monday), July 18 (A.P.).—Fifteen persons were slain and many scores injured in seven bloody political affrays in various parts of the Reich this week-end.

More than 6,000 persons were involved in a battle between Adolf Hitler's Nazis and Communists at Altona, a city of 170,000 persons near Hamburg. Twelve were slain and 50 were in hospitals before police cleared the streets at midnight.

Two persons were killed and 25 seriously wounded at Greifswald, a small town in Pomerania near the Baltic Sea. Police finally quelled the disorder, which involved Nazis and Communists.

A pistol fight between Nazis and anti-Nazi manifestants occurred Sunday in Alte Jakobstrasse in the heart of Berlin, and when the police rushed up they found a Nazi dead and in the gutter.

Cavalry Is Called Out.

Political feeling flared into riots at four other points, continuing the disorders which have brought increasing bloodshed in recent weeks.

A squadron of Reichswehr cavalry from nearby Furstenwalde was called out before a riot between Nazis and Communists was quelled at Ketschendorf, a town 20 miles from Frankfurt-on-the-Oder. The troops chased off the combatants, who left four stabbed Nazis in the streets.

A line of 1,800 East Friesian Nazis marching along the Aurich-Norden high road in East Friesland near the North Sea were fired on from a wayside tavern. Five marchers were seriously wounded.

At Kempten, a town of 20,000, 60 miles southwest of Munich, Communists broke up a Nazi motor lorry procession by erecting barricades in its path.

Women and Children Hurt.

Six were injured, most of them women and children, in a pistol fight between Communists and Nazis at Rheydt, a city of 43,000, 15 miles west of Dusseldorf.

The battle at Altona began during a "propaganda parade" of Nazis through the Communist section of the city during the afternoon.

Snipers began firing on the marchers from housetops and attics. Police stationed along the route also were fired on, and when they retaliated the battle was on.

The police drew up their lines and the Communists swarmed from the houses and tried to erect barricades. The line of Nazis broke and soon the streets were a swarming mass of fighting manifestants. It was midnight before order was restored.

Five were picked up dead in the streets and seven others had died in hospitals at that hour, while 50 remained in wards with more or less serious injuries. No sooner had this scrap been stopped before minor clashes occurred in nearby St. Pauli, the sailors' quarter of Hamburg. Many were wounded before these outbursts were quelled at midnight.

Food Poisons Hundreds At Communist Meeting

Massillon, Ohio, July 17 (A.P.).—Believed victims of food poisoning, between 300 and 400 persons became ill today following a luncheon held in connection with the Communist party's State ratification convention here.

The victims, many of them seriously ill, were taken to the city hospital. Every available bed was filled, and in the wards the sick were placed two to a bed. Corridors were filled, and upward of a half hundred were lying about on the hospital lawn, wrapped in blankets.

Two Koreans Are Seized In Plot on Lord Lytton

Tokyo, July 17 (A.P.).—Lifting of censorship restrictions today permits disclosure that two Koreans were arrested at Dairen about two months ago on charges of plotting against the life of Lord Lytton, British chairman of the League of Nations commission investigating conditions in the Far East.

At the time the commissioners were at Peiping, ready to leave for Tokyo by way of Dairen, and never were in immediate danger. Police said they found one small bomb and two pistols in the possession of the prisoners.

Police Quell Outbreak By Anti-Anglican Mob

Protestants Stage Demonstration Against Popery at Dedication of New Cathedral at Liverpool; Speaker Hauled Down.

Liverpool, England, July 17 (A.P.).—Further Protestant demonstrations disturbed Liverpool today as the new Anglican Cathedral was being dedicated.

Members of the Protestant Reform League demonstrated around the edifice, four of whose stained-glass windows were smashed last week, in protest against "high" Anglican tendencies of the church.

The trouble was not ended until police reinforcements were called to quell several rushes by the crowd.

The Bishop of Liverpool, the Right Rev. Albert David, dedicated the edifice, the largest cathedral in England. While the bishop, clergy and choir were passing around it in procession, singing hymns, members of the Protestant Reform League gathered in large numbers and sang in competition "Dare to Be a Daniel" and the old reformers' song of the Ironsides.

The chief Protestant speaker declared they were making an orderly protest "against popery as practiced by the clergy of the Church of England."

Despite police appeals to him to cease his speech, the leader persisted. Finally he was pulled off the platform and escorted from the neighborhood, which led to angry demonstrations by the crowd and the calling of police reinforcements.

B. E. F. HEADS AGREE TO DROP PICKET IDEA

Discordant Leaders Also Are United in Plan to Stay; To Hold Convention.

The leaders of the bonus army, though wide apart on their legislative programs, formed mutual decisions yesterday not to picket the White House and to remain here, until December if necessary, until bonus legislation is passed.

Normal conditions prevailed at the Capitol because of withdrawal of the picket line and only a handful of additional police were detailed at the White House to prevent a recurrence of the picketing attempt of Saturday night.

The faction led by Roy W. Robertson, who maintained the vigil at the Capitol, moved yesterday to establish national demands for a special session of Congress to consider the bonus payment, while the bonus expeditionary forces issued a call for a convention to decide its policy.

A demonstration against the arrest of the three men taken into custody in the disturbance at the White House on Saturday night is planned for today by the Communist wing of the army who will assemble near Police Court when the men are brought up for a hearing at 9 o'clock this morning.

Resumption of the picket line in the vicinity of the White House is planned for tonight by the radicals, under the leadership of Edwin Pace, of Detroit. The time that the picket will be started will be decided at a meeting this morning at their billets, Thirteenth and B streets southwest.

The split between Robertson and Commander in Chief Walter W. Waters of the B. E. F. became wider yesterday when the crippled leader of the activists held a meeting with twelve leaders from different billets, representing 2,000 men, to lay plans for pressure for the special session.

Over in Anacostia, Waters held a formal review of his ragged troops.

Gov. Murray to Oppose Borrowing From U. S.

Oklahoma City, July 17 (A.P.).—Gov. W. H. Murray today declared definitely against possible Oklahoma participation in Federal relief loans.

"I will oppose any project for the State to borrow any more money," he said, referring to the emergency relief bill, passed by Congress last night, providing $300,000,000 for direct loans to States and municipalities. "We owe too much already."

SEERESS FORETELLS DETAILS OF MURDER

Wife Draws Cards and Finds Husband's Body Later; Brother-in-Law Held.

Chicago, July 17 (A.P.).—A weird story of a wife drawing cards at a fortune teller's forecasting the murder of her husband was climaxed today by the finding of the body of George Carl, 42, South Side storekeeper. He had been shot to death.

The story, corroborated in detail by the soothsayer, Mrs. Susie Ballo, was told police tonight by the widow, Mrs. Vera Carl.

Thursday, she said, she went to the home of Mrs. Ballo, who has a wide reputation in her neighborhood as a seeress. Mrs. Ballo told her if the cards were to tell the truth, Mrs. Carl must turn them up herself.

Mrs. Carl turned up a card—it depicted death, a reaper swathed in white with a scythe in his hand. She turned up the second card. Shocked, she saw the picture of a widow in mourning. Fearfully, she turned the third and final card. It depicted a magistrate——

"The first two cards," she quoted Mrs. Ballo as saying, "mean your husband will be murdered, and by that death you will get money."

The picture of the magistrate was interpreted as indicating trouble with the authorities after the death.

Mrs. Carl and her mother, Mrs. Mary Grilec, said they believed the story of the cards. They warned Carl, they said, but he laughed at their fears.

Dorn Carl, 9-year-old son of the couple, said his mother asserted Friday: "Your father will be shot Saturday night. It's in the cards."

Shortly after midnight Mrs. Carl, her mother and Dorn returned from

American Glider Record Broken in 65-Mile Hop

Elmira, N. Y., July 17 (A.P.).—Word was received here tonight that Pilot Martin Schempp, Pittsburgh, Pa., who took off in a motorless glider in an attempt to break the American distance record of 17.8 miles, landed late today 9 miles south of New Milford, Pa., 65 miles away.

Schempp's record-smashing performance surpassed that of John O'Mears, of New York, who, during the afternoon, glided to Binghamton, N. Y., flying 55 miles. Both men were flying in the national gliding and soaring meet on the wind-swept hills near here.

Father Sees Boy Drown; 3 Perish Near Annapolis

Man, 71, Dies in 5 Feet of Water; Two Youths Other Victims.

George Gaumond, 5, Falls From Boat as Parent Waits on Shore.

Two 15-year-old boys and a 71-year-old man were drowned yesterday in three separate aquatic tragedies near Annapolis. An Edmonston, Md., boy was one of the victims, despite heroic efforts of a companion to save him.

The dead are:

Vernon Deerstine, 15, of Washington.

Charles Addate, 15, of Baltimore.

William T. Wilson, 71, of Mill Creek, Md.

Young Deerstine was a passenger in an outboard motorboat with his brother, George, and his wife, and John Powell, owner of the boat.

Witnesses said the craft was being towed by a motor launch when the wake of a second motorboat overturned it. Powell managed to support George and his wife, but Vernon sank.

The towing motorboat turned about and rescued the other three. The Five-year-old George Gaumond, of 415 Fifth street northeast, lost his life in the Potomac River, near Chain Bridge, yesterday afternoon when he fell from a rowboat in which he had been riding with his mother and two friends, who were unable to aid the boy owing to their inability to swim. The boy's father, who could swim, had remained on the shore to make room for his son in the boat.

Earlier in the afternoon, in company with Miss Harriet Hoover, of 25 U street northwest, a sister of Mrs. Gaumond, and Glenn Ohler, of 3215 U street northwest, the Gaumond family drove to the river intending to stay until evening. At Fletcher's boathouse they rented a boat to take a ride.

Mrs. Catherine Gaumond, the boy's mother, was sitting just ahead of him in the stern of the boat when he suddenly lost his balance and toppled backward. The mother's attempts to

CHILE ASSURES RETENTION OF ALIEN CAPITAL

Private Enterprise Compatible With Regime Is Backed by Davila.

HEAVY TAX PASSED ON LARGE INCOMES

Former Envoy Here Spells Doom of Land's "Foolish Economic System."

Santiago, Chile, July 17 (A.P.).—Private capitalistic enterprise will be permitted within the collective economic system of the State as long as it is not incompatible with the latter, individuals and companies in business have been advised by Carlos Davila, president of the governing junta of Chile's new Socialist republic.

Such private enterprise, where it serves a useful and productive purpose, will even be encouraged toward greater development. This applies to foreign as well as domestic capital.

Big incomes, however, must bear a heavy share of the contribution of revenues to the Socialist state, Davila insists, and must aid in the extension of state operations in industry, agriculture and mining under the collective system.

Distribution of Wealth.

The government promises a more equal distribution of wealth, and at the same time further promises it will cut the cost of state political rule, so that the cost of living for the lower classes will be reduced, and the purchasing power of the peso within the country will be increased.

These are the main points of the preliminary economic program as developed by the second junta, and they will be the basis for detailed plans for full economic development under state supervision in the future.

In a recital of the aims of the government, Davila said that "the previous administration tempered the effects of the crisis by imposing burdens on the working classes. It sought to balance the budget by note issues instead of by a prudent reduction in expenditures and an increase

Two in Grudge Battle Miss Aim in 35 Shots

Morehead, Ky., July 17 (A.P.).—Ed Baldridge, 46, and Jerry Dye, 43, who have been gunning for each other for many years, met for the fifth time today and exchanged 35 shots, but neither was wounded. The gun battle occurred at Clearfield, one mile from here. Excited residents notified Sheriff Dan Parker and his deputies, but the men fled before the officers arrived.

Baldridge was armed with a shotgun and Dye with a pistol. They stood behind trees 50 yards apart. One tree was studded with buckshot after the battle, and the other had several bullet holes in it.

Storm Kills Man; Damage Is Heavy

New Hampshire and Vermont Roads Blocked by Trees; Chimneys Felled.

Manchester, N. H., July 17 (A. P.). An electrical storm, propelled by a wind of cyclonic velocity, caused heavy property damage in sections of New Hampshire and Vermont tonight and caused the death of one man.

Wolfeboro, N. H., apparently was the hardest hit. During the heavy rain the home of John Morriss, at Wolfeboro Center, was moved 3 feet off its foundation. Chimneys were blown down, trees felled and windows broken. Telephone lines were put out of order. Traffic was blocked on numerous highways and one railroad line was blocked by fallen trees.

Charles W. Boyer, 50, of Lakeport, was killed when lightning struck his home.

Reports of damage by lightning and wind were received also from Sanbornville, N. H.; St. Johnsburg and Benson, Vt. At Hardwick, Vt., six groups of farm buildings toppled before the gale.

Farmers Try to Kidnap Finnish Cabinet Member

Helsingfors, Finland, July 17 (A. P.).—An attempt by Finnish Lapua men (farmer Fascists) to kidnap Defense Minister Lahbensuo, an anti-Lapuan, was thwarted during the night, it was learned today.

The minister was at his country home in a Lapua parish during the evening with friends, when a group of Lapua men appeared and ordered the company to stick up their hands. A fusillade was the answer and the Lapua men withdrew.

$600,000 FIRE RAZES 3 PIERS AT BALTIMORE

Nine Alarms Are Sounded Before Flames Are Controlled.

7 FIREMEN INJURED; BIG AREA MENACED

Nearly All City Apparatus Required in Three-Hour Waterfront Battle.

Baltimore, July 17 (A.P.).—In a spectacular nine-alarm fire that for a time threatened an important industrial section of the city, three piers of the Pennsylvania Railroad valued at half a million dollars were burned late this afternoon and merchandise worth $100,000 was destroyed.

Seven firemen and one spectator were injured during the battle with the flames that brought out almost all Baltimore's land fire-fighting equipment and its two fire boats.

Three-Hour Battle.

Fanned by a brisk wind from the Chesapeake Bay, the fire swept from Pier No. 4 on Clinton street to two adjacent piers while firemen were powerless to stop its advance. It was only after three hours that Fire Chief Robert Tate was able to announce the advance was halted.

A crowd estimated at 25,000 persons gathered to watch the conflagration on the landward side, while across the Patapsco River, thousands of others took advantage of Fort McHenry's walls to view it.

The origin could not be determined tonight. A watchman said he was sitting on pier 4 when there was a puff of smoke from the pier shed. He ran to spread the alarm, but by the time the first truck had arrived, the flames were already issuing from the building.

Firemen Flee for Lives.

At one time, the lives of numbers of the firemen were seriously endangered. When the wood and corrugated iron walls of the pier collapsed, flying embers were scattered over a wide area and the men were forced to run for their lives, leaving behind 4,000 feet of hose to be consumed.

Firemen said that had it not been for the open field and railroad yards directly behind the piers, nothing could have prevented the spread of the fire to the mercantile plants in the section.

As it was, detachments of firemen had to be posted in the vicinity to extinguish blazes as they appeared in small buildings and brush.

Wife of Bulkley, Ohio Senator, Dies

Husband En Route to Her Side in Cleveland When Death Comes.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 17 (A.P.).—Mrs. Robert J. Bulkley, 45, wife of United States Senator Bulkley, died early today in Lakeside Hospital from a heart attack. She had been ill for more than a year. Senator Bulkley, who was in Washington for the adjournment of Congress was en route to Cleveland and expected to arrive here tonight.

Mrs. Bulkley was born in Helena, Mont., and as Katherin Pope she married Senator Bulkley in 1909. She was prominent in Cleveland society.

Besides her husband, she is survived by two children, Robert J. Jr., and Miss Katherine Bulkley, and two sisters, Mrs. A. G. Fleming, and Mrs. W. M. Biggs, both of Helena, Mont., and one brother, W. R. Pope, of Great Falls, Mont.

Funeral arrangements will be made later.

Man Slain in Feud; Three Are Injured

Oklahoma Officer, Falling Mortally Hurt, Wounds Assailant in Store.

Madill, Okla., July 17 (A.P.).—A peace officer was killed and three men were wounded in a revolver fight before the soda fountain of a drug store here today.

Crockett Long, State operative, was shot to death in a duel with Wiley Lynn, acquitted in 1924 of murder charges in the slaying of Bill Tilghman, pioneer peace officer. Lynn and two soda fountain customers were injured dangerously.

Grady Neal, deputy sheriff, said Long and Lynn had been enemies for years, their hatred climaxing in a race for the draw when the latter entered the drug store and called out the officer's name. Lynn's first bullet knocked down Long, who fired as he fell.

Rody Watkins, a farm youth, and John Milburn were struck by stray bullets. Watkins' spine was fractured.

HOOVER CALLS RELIEF BILL AID TO RECOVERY; WILL SIGN TOMORROW

Many Issues Unsolved by Congress

DRY QUESTION IS LEFT OVER

Special Session Is Expected on War Debts

(Associated Press.)

Despite the multiplicity of its enactments, Congress has left behind a great variety of issues, headed by the growing prohibition controversy, for the approaching political campaign and future sessions.

No Congress since the war wrote so much important legislation onto the statute books, but almost every minute of the session just ended was spent grappling with emergency relief measures. Few of the permanent problems were solved.

The session ended in a whirl of debate on the prohibition question, almost bound to be projected into the approaching presidential and congressional races and made one of the predominant problems at the short session of Congress beginning in December.

Farm Relief Demands.

Pressing close behind the prohibition question in the closing hours were the demands of agricultural States for legislation to relieve the farmer. Unless farm commodity prices take a tremendous jump meanwhile, the next session will find these demands renewed with greater vigor.

While Congress dealt emphatically with the problem of war debts, voting almost unanimously against any revision or cancellation, many members predicted this question was not yet settled, and in some quarters there were prophecies a special session would be called to deal with the issue.

The Senate made no attempt to dispose of the controversial and politically potent Root protocol for American adherence to the world court. This treaty was left resting on its calendar for the next session.

Muscle Shoals Problem.

Other questions not solved, or only temporarily settled by Congress, included the aging Muscle Shoals problem, naval construction, banking laws reform, Philippine independence, cash payment of the bonus and currency inflation.

Philippine independence legislation was approved by the House, but never reached a vote in the Senate. It has a preferred status on the Senate calendar for the first week of the next session.

What treatment Congress will give next December to the prohibition question depends largely upon the outcome of the intervening elections.

Legislation to repeal the eighteenth amendment and modify the Volstead act is pending in both houses; and in

Dublin Shops Display "Boycott Britain" Signs

Dublin, Irish Free State, July 17 (A.P.).—The capital of the Free State awoke today to find almost every shop in Dublin plastered with signs reading "Boycott English Goods." One large streamer with those words had been strung across the principal street of the city.

While the residents were going to mass this morning, the police went about systematically removing all the signs at the request of the Free State government.

Hoover Cites Chief Benefits of Measure

The text of the President's statement yesterday on the relief bill as approved by Congress follows:

I expect to sign the relief bill Tuesday. I do wish to express the appreciation which I have and I know that the country has to those leaders of both political parties who have cooperated to put the bill into effective shape and to eliminate the destructive proposals which were from time to time injected into it.

Its three major features are:

First—Through provision of $300,000,000 of temporary loans by the Reconstruction Corporation to such States as are absolutely unable to finance the relief of distress, we have a solid backlog of assurance that there need be no hunger and cold in the United States. These loans are to be based upon absolute need and evidence of financial exhaustion. I do

DEMOCRATS CLAIM LEGISLATION CREDIT

Praised by Robinson and Rainey, Who Hit Leadership of Hoover.

(Associated Press.)

Democratic members of Congress, their leaders said yesterday, in a review of the ended session, can report to their constituents "with pride and assurance" for their part in a job well done.

Formal statements were issued by Senator Robinson and Representative Rainey, floor leaders of the Senate and House, respectively, the Democratic national committee.

Robinson said the task done by Congress was made more difficult "because of the lack of leadership on the part of the executive branch of the Government."

"The Chief Executive's actions have not been free of the suspicion of political motives," he said, "as, for instance, when he appeared at the eleventh hour in support of a tax bill on which the Senate was even then ready to vote affirmatively."

Rainey blamed the President for "seeming reluctance to make up his mind on measures essential to the well-being of the country."

He blamed the White House for the long delay in having the emergency relief bill completed. He harked back to Speaker Garner's original bill, which Mr. Hoover termed a "gigantic pork barrel."

"Every effort was made to extend to the people generally the relief which the administration thought should be extended only to social classes," the Illinois Democrat said. "A presidential veto closed this struggle. The House then gave the administration the measure in the form it favored and the responsibility for the outcome as well.

"On this record the Democrats in the House are willing to stand."

"Much of the legislation," said Robinson of Arkansas, "which the Nation now regards with hope and optimism, sprang from Democratic sources."

He listed the relief act, the tax and economy bills and others, and then observed he did not expect the Republicans to remember assurances that political capital would not be made of cooperative achievements.

"It is our intention in this campaign," he said, "to keep the record straight and to see that the Democrats be given credit for the unceasing labor and vigilance which its representatives in Congress have displayed."

STUDIES PLAN ON INFLATION

Provision's Legal Points May Go To Courts

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

Describing the revised emergency relief bill as "a strong step toward recovery," the White House announced formally yesterday that President Hoover would affix his signature to the measure tomorrow.

At the same time it was revealed the home-loan bank bill probably would be signed early in the week, but not before the President had obtained an opinion from the Comptroller of the Currency on the possible economic implication of the Borah-Glass amendment authorizing a degree of controlled inflation of the currency.

Although the question of the constitutionality of this last-minute political amendment to the home-loan bill in Saturday's turbulent final session of Congress was not discussed publicly yesterday either at the White House or the Treasury, it was disclosed fiscal experts of the Government entertain grave doubts concerning the legality of the national bank note issue contemplated in the amendment.

Legal Basis of Currency.

Under the Federal Reserve law authorities on banking law pointed out the national monetary circulation is legally based on Federal Reserve operations. Certain types of older currency in circulation before establishment of the Federal Reserve System were continued under that act, but it is questionable whether new national bank notes now may be authorized as proposed by the Borah-Glass amendment.

Should the comptroller's examination of the complex banking law disclose a constitutional conflict with the provisions of the Federal Reserve law, it is not unlikely that the entire inflation program may be nullified quickly by a court proceeding, which would, in due course, afford the Supreme Court opportunity to pass upon the constitutionality of the measure.

Borah-Glass Scheme.

Meanwhile plans went forward yesterday for the administration of the enlarged relief measure through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Shorn of proposals characterized by the President as "destructive," the measure now promises ultimate employment for hundreds of thousands of men without additional drain upon

Roumania Voting Quiet; Result Still in Doubt

Bucharest, Roumania, July 17 (A.P.).—Roumania's election day passed without serious incidents, and it will be several days before definite results of the general balloting come in. Hard drinks were banned throughout today and for part of tomorrow.

Roumanian elections were made necessary recently when King Carol suspended Parliament after a cabinet crisis.

President Stops Car to Aid Victim of Autos' Collision

Luray, Va., July 17 (A.P.).—President Hoover rested today at his Rapidan River mountain camp from the strain of the final days of Congress.

Crockett Long, State operative, was shot to death in a duel with Wiley Lynn, acquitted in 1924 of murder charges in the slaying of Bill Tilghman, pioneer peace officer. Lynn and two soda fountain customers were injured dangerously.

He arrived from Washington in the middle of the day after pausing on the road to get aid for victims of an automobile crash. His own car, as is customary, was followed by one occupied by Commander Joel T. Boone, White House physician. In order that Boone would not follow him and leave the injured people, the President had his car stopped. The physician treated Alfred F. Platt, of Martinsburg, W. Va., for severe cuts about the head and a fractured wrist.

The automobile of Platt, whose wife and another woman were along but were uninjured, and the car of James Walter, of Arlington, Va., had collided. Mrs. Walter, thrown through the windshield and badly cut, had been taken to a hospital when the President came up.

Reaching camp, Mr. Hoover found the oppressive heat had reached even that altitude, but he took a long tramp during the afternoon. Mrs. Hoover was already there, having stayed in the mountains since last Monday. He had promised to join her but his decision to go was sudden, nevertheless.

Last night White House attaches said there would be no week-end trip. This morning Mr. Hoover visited his office, drafted a statement on his plans for signing the new relief bill and then decided to go. He will remain, unless plans are changed, until

500 NEW LAWS PUT ON BOOKS IN SESSION

Chosen From 18,000 Bills Introduced, Among Bumper Crops.

(Associated Press.)

A round 500 laws were enacted by Congress during the session ended Saturday night. They were chosen from 18,000 bills introduced, one of the bumper bill crops in history.

Of this extraordinary total of ideas on what legislation the country needed, 13,000 were presented in the House, 5,000 in the Senate. Most were of minor importance. The House figure compares with only 7,700 for the last long session of Congress.

Besides the bills in both houses this term there were simple resolutions, joint resolutions, concurrent resolutions which would add approximately another thousand thoughts on the public weal—that's 19,000 brain children.

Crail Champion Introducer.

The tally of the last long session showed 517 public laws, 281 private laws and resolutions, 84 public resolutions passed and signed by the President—a larger total than for this session.

Representative Crail, of California, easily held the bill introducing record in the House. In the huge record book kept by Bill Clerk William J. McDermott, Crail filled up all his own pages and spilled over to the back of the book with a total of 533.

This record, to be augmented in the short session, appears likely to stand a long time, for it was amassed from Crail's Los Angeles constituency of 1,300,000, which will be divided into four full districts and part of another at the next Congress.

Leavitt Got Most Laws.

In contrast to Crail, Representative Busby, of Mississippi; Drewry, of Virginia; Ellzsey, of Mississippi; Granata, of Illinois; Sullivan, of New York; Wood, of Georgia, introduced but one bill each, and Representative Briggs, of Texas, none.

The House average per-member was just an edge below 30, the Senate average per member, 51.

Representative Leavitt (Republican), Montana, held his record of being the House member to have the most bills bearing his name become laws—a total of 17. Last Congress he had 33—22 in the long session and 11 in the short.

Among the 18,000 measures, length varied from a few words to scores of pages, importance from the merest trifle to measures of such country-wide significance as the economy, revenue and relief bills, the moratorium bill and the lame duck resolution.

Marion Dorian Dies At Home in Capital

Marion Dorian, former treasurer of the Columbia Phonograph Co., died yesterday at his residence, 1424 Meridian place northwest. He was 74 years old.

Born in Washington, Mr. Dorian studied law at Columbia Law School, and, after practicing for some years, entered the Columbia Phonograph Co., in Washington. He was transferred to Europe where he spent ten years, and returned to the New York office as auditor. He was then appointed treasurer. He retired about 12 years ago.

Mr. Dorian was a member of the Washington bar, and was a past master of Federal Lodge No. 1, F. A. A. M. He is survived by the widow, Mrs. Louise Dorian, and a son, Otis Dorian, both of Washington. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

in taxes on large incomes and fortunes.

"The consequence of this policy," he continued, "has been that wages and salaries have suffered a decrease in their purchasing power, so that the standard of living has reached its lowest levels.

"The government of the revolution can not continue on this road. Its first duty consists in conserving for the laboring classes their standard of living."

End of "Foolish System."

In line with this program, the Davila government has ordered new income taxes, doubling most of the rates of the old categories and stipulating that incomes over 20,000 pesos shall pay a sliding scale of 2 per cent up to 25, and that on top of these higher rates incomes over 50,000 pesos must pay a surtax which, in the higher categories, is about 46 per cent.

Turning to private enterprise, Davila outlines the new policy thus: "Only a socialistic economic program in the hands of a government with full powers would be able to halt the country on the rough road it was traveling toward its downfall. Such is the task which we have begun.

"However well organized an individual economic system may be, it must fail if it is not governed by the policy of acting as a whole. A collective economic system is possible in our country simultaneously with private economic systems. We desire to retain the latter so far as it may be compatible with new economic principles, and I even think that it has more to gain than to lose by these new principles.

"What must end is the chaotic and foolish economic system under which we were living."

Hoover Outlines Chief Benefits of Relief Bill

not expect any State to resort to it except as a last extremity.

Second—Through the provision for $1,500,000,000 of loans by the Reconstruction Corporation for reproductive construction work of public character on terms which will be repaid we should ultimately be able to find employment for hundreds of thousands of people without drain on the taxpayer.

Third—Through the broadening of the powers of the corporation in the character of loans it can make to assist agriculture, we should materially improve the position of the farmer.

The obnoxious features which had been injected into the legislation from time to time by members of the House of Representatives and had so long delayed action, have been eliminated. The $100,000,000 charity feature has been abandoned. The pork barrel infection that the loans to the States for relief of distress should be based upon population instead of need has been eliminated and also the sum of $1,300,000,000 nonproductive public works ultimately payable by the taxpayer has been reduced to $322,000,000 of which about $120,000,000 are advances to the States for highways and most of the balance is not to be expended if the necessities of the Federal Treasury prevent it.

The provisions for the establishment of a gigantic centralized banking business have been removed.

The possible destructive effect upon credit institutions by the so-called publicity clause has been neutralized by the declaration of the Senate leaders of all parties that this provision is not to be retroactive and that the required monthly reports of future transactions are of confidential nature and must be so held by the clerks of the Senate and House of Representatives unless otherwise ordered by the Congress when in session.

While there are some secondary features of the measure to which I have objection, they are not so great as to warrant refusal to approve the measure in the face of the great service that the major provisions will be to the Nation. It is a strong step toward recovery.

the taxpayer, according to official White House analysis.

In announcing his decision to sign the bill promptly, the President expressed sincere appreciation, both in his own behalf and in the name of the country at large, "to those leaders of both political parties who have cooperated to put the bill into effective shape and to eliminate the destructive proposals which were from time to time injected into it."

The $300,000,000 distress loan fund available to the States offers a "solid backlog of assurance that there need be no hunger and cold in the United States," the President's appraisal of the measure continued. It added, however, that the loans are to be based only on absolute need, plus evidence of financial exhaustion.

"I do not expect any State to resort to it except as a last extremity," the President said.

Publicity Joker Circumvented.

This summary of the bill also confirmed the opinion of parliamentarians on Capitol Hill that Saturday's action in the Senate had circumvented the Garner publicity joker affecting R. F. C. operations.

"The possible destructive effect upon credit institutions by the so-called publicity clause," the White House statement said, "has been neutralized by the declaration of the Senate leaders of all parties that this provision is not to be retroactive and that the required monthly reports of future transactions are of confidential nature and must be so held by the clerks of the Senate and House of Representatives, unless otherwise ordered by the Congress when in session."

Chamber of Commerce Lauds Congress' Record

(Associate Press.)

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States said yesterday:

"Congress has performed its task faithfully and well."

The praise was given in a letter to the membership, sent over the signature of Henry I. Harriman, president. The statement noted that the congressional achievement was obtained "in the face of recurring emergencies and constantly shifting public opinion."

Several Measures Wait Signature of President

(Associated Press.)

A considerable number of bills, both minor and major, and including the mammoth relief and the Home Loan Discount Bank measures, are awaiting President Hoover's signature.

The President has 10 days in which to sign the legislation, turned out in the last days of Congress which adjourned Saturday night. Once it was thought necessary for the Chief Executive to pen his name to the bills before the lawmaking houses quit. A Supreme Court decision last May 31 changed that.

a visit with friends. They found Carl's kneeling body beside a chair, bullet holes in both temples. No weapon was found.

Puzzled by the queer twist of the case, police released, for the time being, the widow and the soothsayer. They held, however, Ivan Grilec, 38, brother-in-law of the victim. On March 4 he sold Carl a $5,000 insurance policy, naming the wife as beneficiary. The policy doubled in value in case of death by violence.

"Whoever killed Carl," said Detective Lieut. Herbert Burns, "was a friend of his and sat talking with him." He said he based his assumption on the fact Carl apparently was quietly engaged in putting fish hooks in corks in anticipation of a fishing trip today when the slaying occurred.

SNOW ADDS TO FEAR FOR MISSING PLANE

Ski-Shod Party Searching for Nine Passengers in Andean Mountains.

Santiago, Chile, July 17 (A.P.).—Fear for the safety of a missing Transandean airliner and her nine passengers mounted today as no word of the ship came out of the winter-bound Andes.

Another discouraging development was nasty weather, which blocked a search by plane from Santiago, Chile, and Mendoza, Argentina. The airliner disappeared somewhere along the 150 miles of fog-covered snow-laden mountains between these two cities yesterday at 8:40 a. m.

The liner, a Pan-American-Grace ship, was last seen flying eastward over Las Cuevas, 10 miles from the Chilean border. She had just come through the dangerous Chacabuco Pass, 10,000 feet in the Andes.

Despite bad weather conditions, however, a party of expert mountain climbers equipped with skis left Las Cuevas by automobile today in the expectation they might find the ship down somewhere along the Transandean Railway Line.

Rain was reported in the lower reaches of the mountains today and snow higher up, with low hanging clouds and fog. Two planes which left Mendoza today were forced back by tricky down-currents of air and low visibility. The same conditions confronted Chilean army aviators who were ready to take off from Santiago.

It was bitter cold in the higher passes, which are mostly snow-covered in this, the winter season.

Panamanians Protest Hoover Order.

Panama City, July 17 (A.P.).—Three thousand citizens of Panama marched to the presidential palace today in protest against President Hoover's executive order incorporating 4½ miles of the Madden road into the Canal Zone. Their representatives told President Alfaro that a presidential decree of 1928 granting the United States jurisdiction over the territory during construction of the Madden Dam resulted from negotiations conducted without the knowledge of the people. They demanded its annulment. President Alfaro promised that the interests of the people would be protected and the crowd dispersed.

Paraguay Sticks by Decision.

Asuncion, Paraguay, July 17 (A.P.). The government of Paraguay, speaking through the United States Legation, today informed neutral powers it must stand by its decision to participate no further in negotiations at Washington to arbitrate a dispute with Bolivia over the Chaco territory. The Paraguayan delegates, withdrawn from the parley some time ago, will not return, it was said, "because of the situation created by recent unjustified Bolivian aggression in the Chaco."

Rebel Leader Leaves Sao Paulo.

Rio De Janeiro, July 17 (A.P.).—An emissary from the rebels of Sao Paulo was reported today to have left that city for Santos, presumably to negotiate with representatives of the federal government. Reports from the Sao Paulo region yesterday indicated the federal command, reinforced by troops sent from here, had encircled the area held by the rebels, but was withholding an attack until the government's offer of arbitration had been definitely accepted or rejected.

Crash Victim Still Delirious.

Mexico City, July 17 (A.P.).—Word from San Geronimo today was that Clarence McElroy, the American flier who was rescued in the Oaxaca jungle 19 days after he had crashed, was still semidelirious from injuries and starvation. The Pan-American International Airways plane en route to Mexico City was diverted to San Geronimo, but was met at the aviation field there by the physician who is attending McElroy. The pilot was told the flier could not be moved for several days.

the Senate, resolutions to change the prohibition laws are on the calendar.

Opponents of these laws forced many votes in both houses during the session; but while they gained votes in several cases, were only victorious once.

That was Saturday, on the final prohibition vote of the session, when the Senate, 37 to 21, voted to take up the Glass resolution proposing to repeal the eighteenth amendment and return control of liquor to the States with the saloon barred.

With many senators absent, the motion came within two votes of obtaining the two-thirds necessary to submit a constitutional amendment to the States.

Opponents of prohibition claimed it was a true test of Senate sentiment for submission of a repeal amendment, but friends of the liquor laws claimed the large group of absentees was a refutation of this contention.

The Glass resolution, with an outright repeal resolution offered as a substitute, remains on the Senate calendar for next session. Along with these is a bill to legalize 4 per cent beer.

Investigations Authorized.

Debate on the Glass resolution, however, revealed a strong division of opinion remains among opponents of prohibition on tactics. Some of them opposed the Glass amendment because it would place in the Constitution a ban against the saloon, which they contended would be "police regulation."

Others, equally unfriendly to prohibition, held that in order to get repeal, it will be necessary to write such a bar against saloons into the Constitution.

While Congress left many problems for future settlement, it provided for continued study of some of them during the summer recess.

Half a dozen committees were authorized to investigate major problems that will confront Congress when it returns.

These committees have been authorized to investigate the Federal Farm Board, loans by the Reconstruction Corporation, governmental economy, the St. Lawrence waterway treaty and the stock market. In addition, both houses have set up committees to watch and investigate campaign expenditures.

Capitol Bans Tradition In Hasty Adjournment

(Associated Press.)

Actual adjournment of Congress Saturday night was—to say the least—just a bit informal.

Old-timers around the Capitol do not remember that the Senate ever before adjourned "sine die," or for good, without first having consent of the House. Legally, it can't be done. Usually a resolution is adopted setting the adjournment hour. It is sent to the House and approved there. Then the time comes, Vice President and Speaker bang gavels and it's all over.

But the Senate adjourned Saturday night and sent the resolution to the House. If the House had decided not to adjourn, there would have been a muddle. The Senate would have had to come back to work.

Furthermore, both branches forgot the customary formality of sending a committee to tell the President Congress was ready to go home—was there anything else he wished, please?

W.C.T.U. UNDECIDED ON POLITICAL PLANS

Democratic and G.O.P. Rum Planks Hit; Awaiting Hoover's Views.

Evanston, Ill., July 17 (U.P.).—The Woman's Christian Temperance Union, for years a power in politics, is in a dilemma over whom, if anybody, to support for President of the United States in the coming election.

"The concensus of W. C. T. U. leaders in communications to national headquarters at Evanston is that neither the Republican nor Democratic party plank offers a solution to the liquor problem," the organization stated after taking a national poll of its membership.

"The members do not share the optimism of the Republican plank that the gains of national prohibition can be conserved with the United States part wet and part dry.

"They are confident that any change except strict enforcement will send the Nation back to the political control of the brewers, distillers and saloonkeepers. The saloon will return under any change of national liquor policy."

While the announcement plainly was a repudiation of both major parties, it left open a way in its closing paragraphs to swing back into line with President Hoover in case his speech of acceptance declares for strict enforcement of prohibition.

Capital in Third Place As U.S. Convention City

Washington follows New York and Chicago as the leading convention city of the United States, according to C. N. Nichols, director of the convention department of the Greater National Capital committee of the Washington Board of Trade.

More than 100 conventions have been held here thus far this year, and many others are scheduled, Mr. Nichols said. He estimated the attendance so far at 50,000. Seventy national organizations have decided to meet here next year and plans are being made for 1934 by others.

CONTROL OF POWER HOLDERS REQUESTED

Commission Report Asserts Regulation of "Top" Companies Vital.

(Associated Press.)

Full public control of holding companies operating in the power utility field was advocated yesterday by the Power Commission as "absolutely essential in the public interest."

In a preliminary report on a year's investigation, the commission said, "Such control to be adequate would include in its scope the service (management and engineering) organizations of these holding companies, with supervision of all contracts between holding companies and their operating companies," and "supervision of the issue of securities to the investing public."

This would include regulation of accounts with requirements providing specifically for the filing of financial and other reports on prescribed forms with full publicity.

To avoid duplication of the Federal Trade Commission's investigation of the financial setup of power companies, the Power Commission did not go into the subject of write-ups of assets, overcapitalization and the like. It said, however, that the data collected disclosed "the dominance of the holding company "in the power field covered by projects licensed by the Federal Government.

"The experience of the commission in its accounting activities had already developed the fact that much of the information necessary is altogether within the control of holding companies," the report said. "Therefore, while * * * the accounts of the licensee are subject to scrutiny by the Federal Power Commission * * * the books of the licensee as a general rule do not reflect detailed information."

The commission said the companies in general cooperated fully in giving information for the inquiry, but the Associated Gas & Electric Co. failed to make the requested return.

"This exception alike brings into contrast the cooperative spirit of the other top companies," the commission said, "and proves the necessity for unquestioned authority being vested in some public agency."

The commission said an analysis of returns made by the holding companies and their affiliates—91 companies in all—showed that 48 major projects under license to public utilities are subject to control by ten top companies, and that these ten serve 12,487 communities with a population of more than 42,000,000. The companies distribute more than 49,000,000,000 kilowatt hours of current, of which 8,000,000,000 is received from the licensed plants already operating.

The degree of community interest between the ten groups is indicated, the report said, by the fact that nineteen directors were directors or officers in the top company or a subsidiary company of at least two groups, one director being thus connected with four groups.

HEAT'S RETURN SEEN AS DEATHS TOP 100

Wave Lingers in Southwest, While Kansas Crops Are Damaged Heavily.

(Associated Press.

The sun turned off the heat yesterday and except in a few scattered sections the Nation breathed in comfort, relaxing after a stabbing heat wave that killed more than 100 persons and did severe crop damage during the past week.

Cities suffocating under record July temperatures were cooled by breezes and rural sections began surveys of damage done by the searing heat and by storms that broke the wave.

Weather bureaus, however, were not optimistic. The sun, they explained, was merely resting after a week's work, and might soon return to stifling activity. Only in the Southwest did the heat continue in intensity. Dallas reported a mercury reading of 100 degrees at 4 p. m., with the State of Texas sweltering.

In the Far West normal July temperatures prevailed—85 to 90—with several cities reporting overcast skies, fogs, and cooling winds.

Midwest Is Comfortable.

The Midwest, crux of the recent heat wave, was comfortable—temperatures slipping to the lower 90s. St. Louis, however, still had readings of 96 and an additional heat death.

New England was sultry, but in the main the East had temperatures graduated from 79 at New York to 90 degrees.

The South shared a hangover of the heat wave with the Southwest, but storms in several cities toppled temperatures. Thunderstorms and clouds over Mississippi, Georgia and Alabama brought relief, and rain at New Orleans scooted the mercury from 92 to 81. Three died there from the heat before the storm hit.

Hail Damages Crops.

Western Kansas corn crops were reported wilting after five days of heat and farmers feared heavy crop damage. In some sections of the country, hail, accompanying rain, added to crop damage.

San Antonio, Tex., was the only city to break a heat record yesterday. It was 105, the hottest July day since 1894. Beaumont, Tex., reported 106 and Houston, 101. Nearby Oklahoma also had temperatures around the 100 mark.

Rutland, Vt., out of step with the Nation Saturday with 44, yesterday jumped to 84, still remaining in the comfort zone.

Heat to Continue Here Today and Tomorrow

The warm weather will continue today and tomorrow, and no signs of relief are in sight, the U. S. Weather Bureau forecaster said last night.

The maximum temperature yesterday was 91, registered at 5 p. m. The kiosk maximum was 97. No prostrations were reported.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

MR. GARNER GETS THE NEWS.

("Speaker Garner will be notified of his nomination for the Vice Presidency by letter."—News item.)

MR. John Nance Garner,
Uvalde, Tex.
Dear John:

Well, I have a surprise for you and you will never guess what it is. I happened to be in Chicago and heard about it first-hand, and at first I was not going to say anything about it, thinking I would just let the news trickle to you through a chance item in the press.

I realized, though, that with the papers so full of news and pictures of the Olympic games, professional golf tournaments, baseball and speeches by Oggie Mills, they would probably not have any space to give to you, so I said to some of my friends, "What do you think about dropping a line to John and letting him know what has happened?" They seemed to think it would be just as well, as they all agreed that you ought to be told about it.

One or two of the boys thought maybe you wouldn't care to know about it; in fact, one fellow said he thought it would be better to let you go through life without ever knowing about it. I gave the matter a whole night's thought, however, and decided that you had a right to share in the secret; so here goes.

There was a big entertainment and radio program arranged in Chicago a few weeks ago during which some of the boys put your name in for second prize, which was the Vice Presidency of the United States. Quicker than you could say Jack Robinson or Willie McAdoo, it went through and you were declared the winner. First prize went to a fellow whose name escapes me for the minute, but he is a tall man with a light complexion and I think he wrote that piece called "Trees."

* * * *

Anyhow, you got the second prize and I am sure that you will be interested in getting the news officially. I inquired to find out whether there was any cash value to it, thinking that maybe you would rather have the money instead, but it seems the nomination for the Vice Presidency is something you have to take just as it lays. I should think they could arrange such things so that if a man had no use for the Vice Presidency he could take a box of cigars, two sofa pillows or maybe a basket of fruit instead, but I am not the boss.

* * * *

Well, I am glad to get this off my chest and no matter what happens don't say I didn't warn you.

With best wishes,
I am your old friend,
SEN. BARKLEY.

REPLY.

SENATOR ALBEN W. BARKLEY,
Washington, D. C.
Dear Bark:

I have just received your interesting letter and you could have knocked me over with a Hoover veto. Of course I am entitled to know about such a nomination, and I appreciate your telling me. I tuned in on that Chicago radio show and so did a lot of my friends, but we all got fed up on the jokes and organ music pretty early in the program and shifted to some of those big advertising programs so we could tell just what the sponsors were selling.

* * * *

I had a hunch that something had happened to me, because people have been avoiding me lately and I have sensed a big drop in prestige. I had no idea what it was, however, until I got your kind letter explaining that I had been named to be Vice President of the United States. I was inclined to be pretty sore at first, but into each life some rain must fall, and besides maybe the boys didn't mean to insult me but did it all in a spirit of foolery.

After all, a man must bear his share of burdens and take the bad breaks with the good.

Your friend,
JACK.

reach the drowning child were futile. The swift current swept his body away from her extended arms, and powerless to aid, the small party in the boat watched him go down for the last time.

On the bank the boy's father, Albert Gaumond, who witnessed the accident, quickly summoned rivermen, but it was not until several hours later that the body was located by Policeman R. C. Ault, of Harbor Precinct. A verdict of accidental death was issued by A. Gruder MacDonald, acting coroner.

Mr. Gaumond is the manager of a downtown department store.

accident happened in Glebe Creek. Watchers from the shore saw the frail craft overturn and immediately sent out boats in an attempt to aid. Waters of the creek were being dragged early this morning in an attempt to recover the boy's body.

Vernon is the son of C. L. Deerstine, of Edmonston.

The Addate boy was drowned when he stepped off a shoal at Berger's Shore, not far from Annapolis, into deep water. His sister, Evangeline Addate, and two boy companions were unable to help him, all being poor swimmers.

Before the screams of the children could attract help the boy had drowned. His body was recovered about two hours later. Police Justice Louis M. Hopkins, of Annapolis, held a coroner's inquest and issued a certificate of accidental death.

Wilson was drowned at Mill Creek, about 4 miles from Annapolis, on a body of water by that name. He is the father-in-law of Jesse Fisher, city alderman of Annapolis and president of the Maryland Volunteer Firemen Association.

Seeking relief from the oppressive heat, Mr. Wilson had gone bathing. Physicians expressed belief that he suffered a heart attack while in water 5 feet deep. The body was recovered in three-quarters of an hour. Hopkins also issued a certificate of accidental death in the Wilson drowning.

$100,000,000 ADDED TO LIVE STOCK VALUE

Industry Enjoying Steady Advance in Hog and Cattle Prices.

Chicago, July 17 (A.P.).—Live stock is calling the turn.

Down in the yards they have been watching the longest increasing advance in hog prices ever known. They have seen cattle lead the way as the first farm commodity to rise above 1931 prices.

For 34 days without interruption hog prices gained steadily. From $3.50 for "top" hogs on May 28 the price swelled to $5.55 last Monday, while the average advanced from $3.15 to $5.

During the last week a reaction set in—a natural reaction, perhaps, after an amazing forward movement, but accentuated by the wave of heat that engulfed most of the country and drowned out the market for fresh pork. The setback trimmed 40 to 50 cents from the $2 gain.

Who benefits?

Economists have estimated the live stock on the farms has taken on $100,000,000 or more of added value, yet there is no stampede to sell, for receipts continue low in the principal markets and stock yards authorities said today that farmers are evincing a disposition to hold and fatten their cattle—and seem better able, moneywise, to wait.

Charles A. Wilson, president of the Chicago Live Stock Exchange, called the recent gains seasonal. He pointed out, too, that prices still lie well below the five and ten year averages. Cattle alone, averaging $8.25 last week, have climbed above the corresponding week of 1931, when the average was $7.65. Hogs, despite their advance, averaged $4.80 last week, against $6.40 a year ago.

This is not the usual month for the peak in cattle. In fifteen years October has seen the best prices paid for cattle nine times.

VETERANS LAY PLANS FOR EXTRA SESSION

To Hold Convention to Form Policies; Food Demanded by Robertson.

and took the salute of the marching companies as they passed the reviewing stand. The Robertson group, footsore, and weary from their long march in front of the Capitol took little interest in anything but rest and food.

The stringent regulations in force near the White House after the picket attempt by the Communist wing of the Army, were rescinded early yesterday and pedestrians and motorists were permitted the usual privilege of moving through the north driveway.

President Hoover departed early in the day for his Rapidan Camp, leaving a heavily guarded Executive Mansion. Most of the special men were withdrawn, and only 29 men from the Metropolitan Police were detailed in the vicinity to halt any attempts to demonstrate.

There was a detail of 35 Metropolitan policemen at the Capitol early yesterday; but they were withdrawn when no demonstrators appeared.

Waters announced his intention of not picketing the White House yesterday. To his men at Camp Anacostia, he said: "nor are we going home beaten. We have nothing to go home to."

Will Elect Delegates.

"I see nothing that could be gained by establishing a picket line at the White House," said Robertson yesterday afternoon.

The national headquarters of the B. E. F. issued an order yesterday for the election of delegates by the men for a convention to be held next week. There will be a delegate for every 50 men in the army. Elections will be by ballot and must be held within three days.

With Waters on the reviewing stand yesterday at Camp Marks was Representative Clyde Kelly, of Pennsylvania, Chief of Staff Doak E. Carter and Edward F. Atwell, commander of Camp Marks.

The commissary of the national headquarters was yesterday accused by Robertson of refusing to issue food to his men, because they have refused to affiliate with the B. E. F. Robertson declared the food was donated to the army for the use of all the men and not for any special group.

Speakers' Bureaus Planned.

The Robertson faction plans to organize speakers' bureaus throughout the country to create sentiment for the special session to pass legislation for veterans who are in actual need.

Urbain Ledoux, New York social worker, who was arrested at the White House demonstration, was released on bond yesterday. The others are still held on charge of parading without a permit and disorderly conduct.

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., July 17.—The "lost battalion" of the contingent of 2,600 bonus seekers who left Los Angeles, Calif., June 10, pulled into Winchester today, broke and tired. In their old automobiles they had detoured about 400 miles off the beaten West-East transcontinental path taken by their buddies, who, according to press reports, arrived in Washington four days ago.

Thieves Cut Wall to Steal Tires.

Thieves yesterday cut a hole in the rear wall of a junk shop at 3619 Benning road northeast, owned by Joseph Smith, and removed two automobile tires. The theft was discovered by police, who notified the owner.

Istanbul, Turkey, July 17 (U.P.).—Fierce criticism was aroused today by a new bill proposing State control of sugar, coffee and tea imports. Critics of the bill argued that Turkish prosperity was declining because state monopolies discouraged private initiative. Missing St. Paul Boy's Body Is Found in Lake

St. Paul, July 17 (A.P.).—The body of Robert Seid, 8-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Seid, of St. Paul, missing since Friday, was found today in White Bear Lake, near here.

He had accidentally drowned in 4 feet of water, authorities said, thus disposing of an earlier belief of relatives that the child might have been kidnaped.

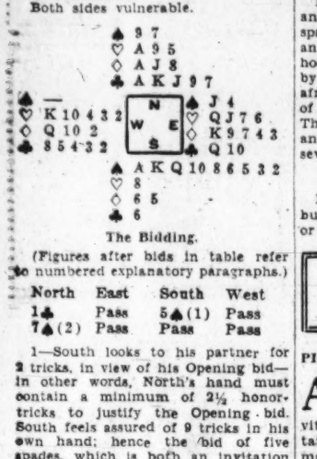
A SOUND CONFERENCE.

GRAND SLAM bids are a law unto themselves. The risk incident to bidding them, unless the hand can be laid down when the first lead is made, is very great, and control of all four suits should be assured before such a contract is undertaken. Control of the suits being certain, then the possibility of losing tricks to adversely held honors should be taken into account. In other words, a Grand Slam should not be bid unless certain of fulfillment in advance.

An interesting example of a Grand Slam safely bid in accordance with sound principles occurred in a recent Duplicate game, in which only one North and South pair reached the correct eventual declaration, which was, of course, a Grand Slam in spades.

The hand and bidding were:
North—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The Bidding.

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

North	East	South	West
1♣	Pass	5♠(1)	Pass
7♠(2)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—South looks to his partner for 2 tricks, in view of his Opening bid—in other words, North's hand must contain a minimum of 2½ honor-tricks to justify the Opening bid. South feels assured of 9 tricks in his own hand; hence the bid of five spades, which is both an invitation and a warning—a warning not to bid for a Slam if the 2½ minimum honor-tricks do not include control of at least one suit in addition to clubs, but an invitation to bid for a Slam, provided the honor-trick content behind the Opening club bid does have the control of Opening leads and the tricks to make the contract. By inference, also South guarantees the solidity of the spade suit; otherwise, with even a longer spade holding, lacking the Ace, a bid of four spades would be sufficient to apprise his partner of his unusual holding.

2—North correctly reads South's message. He places him with nine spades to the three top honors, and holding two spades, which must guarantee that there are no spade losers, and three Aces and one King in addition, he correctly bids the Grand Slam.

Peculiarly enough, although the hand was played in a Duplicate game, scored on the match point system, at only one table was the Grand Slam in spades bid and made. At one table one of the ranking players of the world played the North hand at a contract of six notrump. This contract, of course, is easily makable with an overtrick, but is not as advantageous a contract nor as safe a contract as six spades. To reach this unusual contract required some unsound bidding on the part of South.

North's Opening bid was one club, and South answered with three spades, conveying to the North player an entirely incorrect picture of his holdings. North then equally erred by bidding six notrump, and South, afraid that North did not hold Aces of the two unmentioned suits, passed. Thus the safe contract of six spades and the almost certain contract of seven spades were both missed.

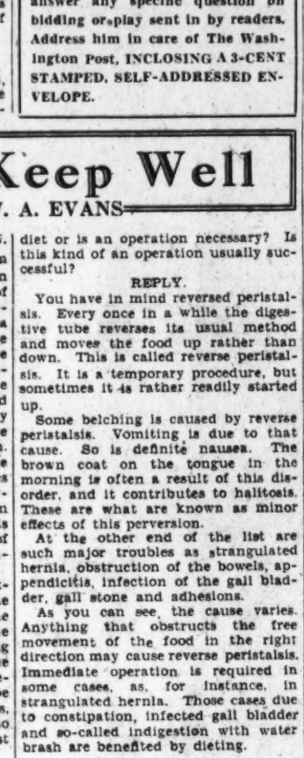
TODAY'S POINTER.

Failure to make a Forcing Takeout, but instead jumping the bid to game or more, in itself denies the possession of the honor-trick strength requisite for a Forcing Takeout—namely, 3 plus honor-tricks.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

West—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it, and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

Black tulle, turquoise blue velvet and gold lah-may make this evening gown of Far Eastern inspiration. (A Dah-ray design.)

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., July 17.—Well, here I am! 'Case I haven't told you, I am "Olympicnicking" here for a few weeks—Dawn Mirage being left in charge of the silver dragons that guard it and keep my heart in all its broken pieces—for a broken heart that is not allowed to mend can not be broken again, can it? Well, then on to Paree—for which I admit a terrinostalgia. Well, to get down to business, being a fashion cricket is so-o-o-ome job, here! Because here there are more lovely and beautiful women to the square inch than anywhere else in the world—and they wear more things, of every kind and variety—and somehow, manage to always look delightful and smart—even though it is a bit upsetting to saunter down Hollywood boulevard and to encounter, all in its few block's length a couple of sweet young things in beach pyjamas; a ravishing and glace blonde in oyster white from head to foot, real pearls and a newly bathed and consequently oyster white Russian wolfhound; a chic Easterner in black crepe and snugly fitting tailored white broadtail jacket; a rose-cheeked, hazel-eyed brunette in a printed chiffon afternoon frock of the garden-party variety, and a handful of ravishing females of all ages in sportswear that would positively make Biarritz go Irish with chagrin. All in a few blocks, my deah—and in the morning—believe it or whatever.

Think I haven't a hard time holding the helm of the good ship Elegance and Good Taste here? This metropolitan city that so defiantly insists upon acting like a summer resort!

Well, like all things unusual and charming, one is delighted with it all, and lucky to be on the outskirts, looking on.

Watch for more "Olympicnicking" news—via Fashions, of course!

* * * *

You can, of course, tummie it or not, as you wish. For it's quite the mode—yet daring, to be sure—to wear your tummie right out in sight. 'Tis an old Egyptian custom, too—or costume, rather.

The evening gown I designed for you today can be tummie exposing or tummie concealing, whichever you wish—without in any way destroying its value as a design. Gold lame (lah-may), supple as silk, makes the bodice, and the lame is banded in deep turquoise blue velvet. Then the high girdle of the waistline is gold lame and blue velvet, too, the upper part of it gathered, the hip part fitting snug. The lower band of velvet flares, as you can see. And last, the skirt is, of course, mesh black tulle, circular in cut and slim to below the knees, where it starts to flare 'n' flare. The velvet band helps it to flare, of course. Like eet?

* * * *

'Nif you aren't int'rested in any evening gowns today—'cept to look at them—how would you like to know how to make an adorable bathing suit or beach costume from two bandanna handkerchiefs? And to make it in half an hour, too! And to have something with real personality when you are done—what's more! Well, sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post will get for you the illustrated leaflet which tells you how to make it.

Au revoir!

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

Bathing Suit and Beach Show Up Beauty Flaws and Make Women Ambitious to Be Beautiful

JUDGING by the beautiful pictures one sees at shore resorts and by many letters pouring in, the bathing suit and beach make a fine combination for spurring women on to greater loveliness. Look around you the next time you are at the beach. I dare say you'll see a higher standard of feminine face and figure beauty than you did yesteryear.

And come with me to my desk and scan some of the letters. See how beauty conscious the abbreviated bathing suits make women. Small wonder—seeing as how they call attention to every little figure flaw. And Old Sol has a mighty magnifying effect on skin and hair difficulties.

The Figure.

Letter upon letter complaining that "this old (or young) figure ain't what it ought to be." It's either too stout or too scrawny, all the way through. Or, worse yet, there's an uneven distribution of weight. Upper arms, or bust, or waist, or thighs and ankles with more than their share, thank you. Or, as luck would have it, pretty good proportions except for scrawny neck and shoulders, or a flat chest, painfully thin extremities and so on. Mark my words, the coming fall fashions will have the bathing suit season to thank for the figure perfection I'll wager we'll be seeing.

The Face.

And the summer season and sun are starting ever so many skins on a clearing campaign. Soft shadows and rose-colored lamps are kind to the skin, but the glaring, magnifying light of the sun shows up every little imperfection. "I never knew my skin was so full of blackheads, or little eruptions, or under-the-skin pimples, or the pores so large"—these are only a few of the complaints which have come to me recently. Take your pocket mirror into the sunlight and see what your own skin reveals. If it is clear and smooth and fine of texture, you are indeed fortunate. Keep it that way. Don't let up in your beauty care.

Superfluous hair is another evil that the sun shows up, much to the misery of thousands of women. A little down on the lip suddenly looks like a heavy moustache growth in the glaring sun.

Signs of Age.

And what with youth running rampant everywhere, signs of age show up too cruelly by comparison. As one woman writes, "It is sad when one feels young, and really isn't awfully old, yet is stamped out of youth's class by a few facial wrinkles or a hanging chin. There ought to be a law, there ought to be a way that women could at least look as young as they feel." The fact is: there is a law and there is a way, really, and it's simple and sensible.

Within the next week or so I will tell you how to treat the problems mentioned here. Or—if you wish personal advice, write me, telling me specifically which of the problems mentioned above you wish to combat.

Elsie Pierce

Elsie Pierce, famous beauty lecturer, will answer any questions on beauty you wish to ask her. Address Miss Pierce, in care of The Washington Post, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

What Today Means to You

"CANCER."

IF July 18 is your birthday the best hours for you on this date are from 7:30 a. m. to 9 a. m., from noon to 2 p. m. and from 9:40 p. m. to 10:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 10:10 a. m. to 11:35 a. m. and from 6 p. m. to 8 p. m.

The stars indicate "change" for July 18, and established customs and habits may be broken, or a new environment sought. The problems of the day will not be unaffected by romantic influences. An auspicious time for "Miss Society" and all her friends; the atmosphere will lend itself to merriment.

The child born on this July 18 will be kindly treated by fate and will be endowed with more than average intelligence and an attractive personality. It will not be a "go-getter," however, and may not make much good use of its natural advantages. Disinclination will be a besetting sin.

Your character, if born on July 18, will make it difficult for you to make up your mind; to form a resolution and keep it. One of your chief characteristics is lack of decision. When a problem presents itself your mind becomes at once an active debating society. You do not fail to appreciate palpable advantages, but, on the other hand, you are always disposed to overemphasize difficulties and exaggerate drawbacks.

You possess physical but are lacking in moral courage, and anything that savors of taking a chance scares you. In this way you have, so far, managed to miss one or more valuable opportunities, as while you have been inwardly discussing "pros" and "cons" others less timorous have snapped up what was yours for the taking.

A charming but not forceful personality is one of your assets. You can achieve much by its exercise, although not so much as if you were more self-reliant and aggressive. Your nature is affectionate, but is destined to die an early death unless there is hearty reciprocity. You are a stickler for convention, a slave to what you conceive to be your duty, possessing a fund of comon sense, but an overdose of self-consciousness.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

PIGMENT IN THE NAILS AND SKIN.

ALTHOUGH much has been learned about the pigmentation of the skin, since the study of vitamins and their relation to a certain part of the light ray became a matter of great interest, there are many questions that remain to be solved. We know that chemical substances of a peculiar makeup are found in some cells of a pigmented skin, but we do not know just why these cells are chosen and just the origin of the chemicals they contain.

In an effort to solve some of the problems, pigmentation in Negroes has been studied. The skin of a newly born Negro baby is much lighter in color than it will be later on. That is easily explained, because the effect of light is needed to complete the equation.

But the effect of light does not explain the relative light color of the palms of the hands and soles of the feet in later life. It is said that the nails of Negroes have a differentiating shade even at birth, but it is not due to recognizable granules of dark melanin. Later on such granules can be found in the substance of the nails, but it is not an effect of exposure to light, or, if it is, the exposure must have been prolonged.

Pigmentation of the nails due to melanin granules may not come until late in life. If it appears in childhood it will not develop until long after infancy. If a microscopic examination of pigmented nails be made the granular black material will be found in streaks which run lengthwise of the nail. If the examination be extended to the cells which form the root and the bed of the nail no evidence will there be found of any peculiarity.

Since these cells are converted into the tissue which we call nail there must be some peculiarity of them out of which the pigmentation of the nail is presently to develop, but so far it escapes the chemical and microscopic tests which are in use.

The white part of the eyeball in some Negroes is noted to be pigmented. Sometimes this is snuff colored and other times another shade of brown. Occasionally it is black; frequently yellow or yellowish. This is a phenomenon which appears with age, not being present in the young. It is never of the same shade as the neighboring skin. There is no explanation of this pigmentation.

Very often there is considerable pigmentation of the mucous membrane of the mouth. This may have a somewhat striped effect, as in the nails. This is far from constant. So far as concerns the pigmentation of the pupil, the retina, the hair, and such internal organs as the kidney and the liver, it is the same in both blacks and whites.

REVERSE PERISTALSIS.

J. S. writes: What is reversed colon? What causes it? Can it be cured by diet or is an operation necessary? Is this kind of an operation usually successful?

REPLY.

You have in mind reversed peristalsis. Every once in a while the digestive tube reverses its usual method and moves the food up rather than down. This is called reverse peristalsis. It is a temporary procedure, but sometimes it is rather readily started up.

Some belching is caused by reverse peristalsis. Vomiting is due to that cause. So is definite nausea. The brown coat on the tongue in the morning is often a result of this disorder, and it contributes to halitosis. These are what are known as minor effects of this perversion.

At the other end of the list are such major troubles as strangulated hernia, obstruction of the bowels, appendicitis, infection of the gall bladder, gall stone and adhesions.

As you can see, the cause varies. Anything that obstructs the free movement of the food in the right direction may cause reverse peristalsis. Immediate operation is required in some cases, as, for instance, in strangulated hernia. Those cases due to constipation, infected gall bladder and so-called indigestion with water brash are benefited by dieting.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

CHILD'S MEALS.

(Bureau of Home Economics.)

When a new baby leaves the hospital with its mother, regular feeding habits have been established. Authorities may differ as to the best intervals between feedings, but as long as the young mother sticks to the schedule she has been given the baby generally does pretty well.

Later on, however, when the child begins to eat solid foods and finally to feed himself, little lapses of regularity creep in. The mother may try to fit the little one's meals in with different kinds of household tasks on different days, or with the meals of older persons in the family. Sometimes these irregularities become so much of a habit that the child has no set time for any meal, and the mother allows him to "piece" when he feels hungry in order to suit her own convenience better in preparing his next meal.

Child specialists consider these easy-going ways distinctly harmful to the child. The danger time is in the preschool years. When a child is old enough to go to school two of his meals—breakfast and lunch—are regulated by the school clock, and supper or dinner, by the family custom. (If this meal is very late, a wise mother will give the child a simple supper by himself somewhat earlier.)

Between the bottle period and the school age he should also live regularly by a well-thought-out schedule, says a child specialist of the Bureau of Home Economics. His hours for meals, for exercise or play in the open, for his daytime nap and bedtime, should be exactly the same every day. This regularity helps to keep his body well and his appetite normal. The spaces between meals should not be too great or he will be excessively hungry and perhaps eat more at one time than his capacity permits. If he seems to want food between meals, give him a glass of milk and a cracker or some raw fruit juice regularly in the middle of the longest interval.

Regular eating-times are part of a general orderly routine in the home which has an improtant influence on the child's development and freedom from nervous tendencies. He is entitled to an orderly way of serving his meals, and orderly surroundings in which to eat them. There should be no confusion or distraction. The mother should be calm and unhurried at meal times, the dining-room or other eating place neat and attractive to look at. The table should be simply, but prettily, set with the child's own dishes and implements, if he has them.

The mother has still another responsibility in connection with the child's meals. The food must be well-cooked and attractively presented. Lumpy cereal, scorched cocoa, or orange juice containing castor oil may be the starting point of a food dislike in even a very young child. Food should never be used as a carrier of medicine. No comments should be made on the appearance of the food, or on the purpose for which it is given, or on the child's attitude toward it.

Serve small portions to a small child at first, letting him ask for more if he wishes it. Then he will finish the whole amount given him. Parents sometimes overestimate the capacity of the young child, and serve him so much that he is too discouraged to begin to eat, or that he can not finish even though he makes a good start. With wise servings he will learn to clear his plate of what is given him, which is one of the best ways to encourage good eating habits.

ROOSEVELT PRAISED AS SAILOR BY GUEST

Exclusive Account Describes Seamanship Tests Met by Governor.

In the following story, written exclusively for the Associated Press, George Briggs, the only member of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's yachting party off the New England coast who is not a member of the family, describes his impressions of the Democratic presidential candidate as a skipper. Briggs, who has 10 years of experience with sailing craft, and who was in the Navy during the war, was particularly impressed by the manner in which Gov. Roosevelt handled the Myth II in "tight places."

By GEORGE BRIGGS.

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

On Board Roosevelt Yawl, Myth II, Little Harbor, N. H., July 17.—Today I finished a week as a sailor under the command of "Skipper" Roosevelt, the Democratic presidential nominee. I regret that it is over. Rain today prevented the governor from taking a final sail off Little Harbor with Barbara and Mary Cushing and Mrs. Betsey Cushing Roosevelt, wife of James.

The governor is a fine skipper and a ship's master without equal in my fifteen years experience in the Navy and every kind of sailing craft. It was a very great privilege to be able to join Gov. Roosevelt and his party on their cruise from Port Jefferson, Long Island, to Portsmouth, N. H. When his son James invited me I lost no time in accepting.

The Myth II is a centerboard yawl Marcon rigged, and a far cry from the heavy old schooner Half Moon in which Gov. Roosevelt had cruised every summer for some fifteen years prior to the war.

Test of Seamanship.

Right at the outset, alongside the dock at Port Jefferson, he found himself facing one of those decisions a skipper always has to meet. We had a fresh breeze dead ahead, and a strong head tide through the narrow harbor entrance. The last words of caution from the owner as he left the governor in charge were: "She does not work to windward very well in a heavy breeze."

The governor would have liked to sail grandly away from the dock, while the cameras clicked and the crowd cheered, but he prudently accepted a tow and we set all sail outside the harbor. He had no way of telling how the boat would handle in close quarters, or answer to the strange crew.

From the westerly end of New Haven Breakwater we ran down into Morris Cove, where we had a lee shore and an open sweep of 3 miles in which the strong westerly built up quite a sea. The governor worked in through the anchorage of the New Haven Yacht Club and rounded up in most approved fashion. We let go both anchors, and after dragging about 100 feet they held us fast. It was a pretty fair test of seamanship, and if the governor had had any nerves we would have heard from them then.

Through Narrow Inlet.

One night, getting into Cuttyhunk, the governor showed us what he could do. By this time he had the feel of the Myth II and was enjoying sailing her in close quarters. By the time we were off Hen and Chickens we had a fine whole sail breeze and enough sea to make it interesting. Coming in by Penekese, we dropped the main, and then the governor serenely proceeded to sail us through a narrow inlet into the salt pond at Cuttyhunk under jib and jugger.

He was close-hauled all the way and he had a head tide and a channel about as wide as a full-grown alley. The natives on the dock gaped with amazement, and later were good enough to say that it was years since they had seen that trip done. The rest of the trip was easy sailing.

The governor shared the same mess with his crew and his bunk was just like those of the other five. Three or four times the gasoline stove in the galley gave us a scare and the yawl leaked water every day, but these things didn't disturb the skipper.

Tobacco Growers Plan Picnic at Seaside Park

It will be one of the largest picnics held in Maryland. More than 4,000 attended last year's affair. Gov. Albert C. Ritchie and other State notables will be invited to attend.

Illiteracy in City Found Less Than in Country

(United Press.)

The city lad is smarter than his country cousin, according to figures made public yesterday by the Department of Commerce.

The percentages of illiteracy in the city population shown in the census for 1930 ranged from three-tenths of 1 per cent for persons 10 to 14 years of age to 7.4 per cent for those 65 years and over. In the rural population the comparative percentages were 2.5 and 15.11.

The Census Bureau defines as illiterate any person 10 years of age or over who is not able to read and write either in English or any other language. The latest figures show 4,283,753 persons returned as illiterate or 4.3 per cent of the 98,723,047 individuals 10 years old and over.

DRY AGENT ACCUSED OF THREAT ON TOWN

Alleged Statement Offered as Part of Inquiry of New York Raid.

Alexandria Bay, N. Y., July 17 (A.P.).—The statement of an Alexdria Bay stock broker that he heard a prohibition agent threaten to "come back and wreck the town" was offered for consideration tonight in the Federal investigation into circumstances surrounding the injury of two dry agents and three civilians in recent disorders here.

G. H. Savage, secretary of the chamber of commerce of this resort town and a moving spirit behind the complaint against recent acts of enforcement agents here, said the statement was made by Robert Gibson, of Alexandria Bay.

"Gibson was in Watertown a few hours after the first raid here last Tuesday night in which two agents were beaten up," Savage said. "He heard a conversation in which a dry agent said, 'We'll come back and wreck the town.'

"Gibson prepared an affidavit, and we are going to forward it to Commissioner Woodcock."

Savage said another statement to be sent Woodcock was one by a former mayor of the village, Fuller Cornwall, who said he asked an agent sitting in an automobile, "Why don't you men respect the Constitution and the Bill of Rights?" At this, Cornwall said, the agent lifted a revolver in his direction.

Meanwhile the Federal Government moved to take out of the New York State courts the prosecution of Agent Bourke Bornemann, of Syracuse, charged with reckless driving as the result of injury to two citizens as agents were leaving another raid.

Oliver D. Burden, United States district attorney at Syracuse, planned to seek tomorrow an order from United States Judge Bryant at Malone, N. Y., to remove the case to Federal court.

TENNIS STAR'S KIN BREAKS FROM CELL

Half-Brother of Richards and Three Others Make Ingenious Escape.

Elmsford, N. Y., July 17 (A.P.).—Ralph Richards, errant half-brother of Vincent Richards, the tennis star, and a companion were sought by New Jersey police tonight after an ingenious escape from Westchester County Penitentiary with two others.

Frank Larocco, 18, and Arthur Polumbo, 25, both short-termers, were captured early today near Alpine, N. J., after they had stolen and abandoned an automobile. Richards and John De Rosa, 22, separated from them, but were believed to be still in the vicinity of Alpine.

Richards and his confederates inserted between the tumblers and the sockets of their cell door locks pieces of leather so fine the locks did not click shut, but the automatic indicators in their corridors showed the cells to be locked.

Newburgh police twice reported four men in prison uniform had been seen near the prison, but the indicators showed that every prisoner was in his cell. It was necessary to rout out every one of them to determine who was missing.

Richards entered the penitentiary less than a month ago to serve a year for second degree assault four years after he pointed a revolver at a State policeman who was trying to arrest him for impersonating an agent of the Department of Justice.

Legionnaires in Alexandria Planning Convention Fetes

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The convention committee of Alexandria Post, No. 24, American Legion, has announced that the principal banquet of the convention, which will meet in Alexandria, July 31, will be held in the Lee-Jackson High School building. Just outside Alexandria. Clyde B. Lanham is chairman of the banquet committee.

On Sunday, July 31, a child welfare luncheon will be held in the George Mason Hotel, presided over jointly by Mrs. Richard B. English, of Alexandria, child welfare officer for the American Legion Department of Virginia, and Mrs. W. P. Matthews, of Richmond, child welfare chairman of the American Legion Auxiliary. This will be attended by a committee appointed by Dr. A. T. Finch, department commander, the unit child welfare chairmen of the auxiliary, and will be open to the public.

Plans are being completed to stage a boxing exhibition at Portner's Arena on the night of August 2, for the entertainment of delegates and others attending the convention. Arrangements are in charge of Abe Martin and Jack Tulloch, local boxing promoters.

Forrest G. Cooper, national vice commander of the American Legion, will be one of the speakers at the convention, according to W. Glenn Elliott, State adjutant. He is expected to speak of the work of the Legion in its national aspect, and tell the legionnaires what they are expected to contribute as a State department. Mr. Cooper is a graduate of the University of Mississippi and a resident of Indianola, Miss. He served in the Army Aviation Service during the World War.

The convention committee has announced that meetings of the committee will be held in future three times a week, Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings in Gadsby's Tavern, at 8 o'clock.

The Mount Vernon Chapter, National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, are planning a morning card party for the benefit of the Gadsby's Tavern fund, to be given in Gadsby's Tavern Wednesday, July 27, from 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. Reservations of tables are being made by Mrs. John T. Ashton, and the general public has been invited to attend.

The D. A. R. recently had the ground floor of the old City Hotel, which is a part of Gadsby's Tavern, restored, and on February 22 last a costume ball was given, following as closely as possible the birthnight balls given during George Washington's lifetime, in honor of his birthday, in this same building.

Percy C. Wiley, 30 years old and unmarried, died suddenly yesterday at the home of his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Shepard, at Engleside, Fairfax County. The funeral will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon from Lewis Chapel, Engleside. Interment will be in the cemetery at that place.

Arlington Street Group to Meet.

The citizens committee organized by Arlington County Manager Roy S. Braden to rename some of the county streets will meet Friday night at the courthouse.

SUICIDE NOTE ASKS GIRL'S FORGIVENESS

Ingleside, Va., Man Shoots Self, Leaving Message, "I'm No Good."

"Forgive me, Doris; I'm no good." This was the farewell message to his sweetheart found on the body of Percy Wiley, 31 years old, of Ingleside, Va., who shot and killed himself Saturday night.

The note was written on a birthday card he had received that day from his sweetheart. A picture of him and the girl was found with the note and on it was written "Good-by, Doris, Good-by."

Wiley's family retired about 9:30 o'clock Saturday night and he told them he would go to bed in a few minutes. Yesterday morning it was discovered that his bed had not been slept in and a search was made. His body was found in the orchard about 100 yards from the house. His death was caused by a shot in the head from the revolver found clutched in his hand. He had been dead several hours.

He is survived by his parents, Capt. and Mrs. James Wiley, and a sister, Mrs. Walter Shepherd. An investigation was conducted by the Fairfax County coroner, Dr. C. A. Ransom, who issued a certificate of death by self-inflicted gunshot wound.

HOOVER PROGRAM COMPLETE.

President Hoover's program of reconstruction, most of which was outlined to Congress at the beginning of the session last December, has been enacted into law. Congress was very dilatory in accepting the President's relief plan, and the home loan bank bill passed at the last minute after a struggle extending over about six months. To save this measure from defeat Republican leaders in the House allowed the fatuous Glass-Borah inflation amendment to pass also, but it will not destroy the usefulness of the new banks. President Hoover has agreed to sign the relief bill on Tuesday, and he probably will sign the home loan bank measure unless the inflation amendment is found to be too obnoxious.

Senator Robinson makes a final thrust at the President by accusing him of ineffective leadership. The senator spoke at the very moment when President Hoover was receiving congratulations from all parts of the country on the final enactment of his entire reconstruction program. Few Presidents obtain everything they request of Congress, especially when the two houses are under control of rival parties. Senator Robinson takes issue with indisputable facts.

President Hoover has not made an issue of any piece of legislation, except the emergency measures designed to relieve the country from the throes of depression. The House balked on some occasions, but it was forced to yield in every instance. The weight of public opinion compelled Speaker Garner to surrender his pork barrel, his proposed bureaucratic bank and a number of other nostrums calculated to make a political appeal. President Hoover firmly refused to accept any quack remedies, and he held the whip over Congress until his complete program was written into law in form that is acceptable to himself and to the country. The high quality of his leadership is not questioned by non-partisan observers who have watched the steady development of his program over the last eight months.

Almost the entire session was given over to reconstruction. Yet no measure of any economic consequence was enacted outside the scope of the Hoover program. Stalwart members of Congress on both the Democratic and Republican sides gave support to his plans, for which the President offers his thanks. But no one came forth with a rival scheme, except Speaker Garner, and his grandiose ideas about curing hard times have been completely repudiated.

There is strong reason to believe that President Hoover has laid the foundation on which a return to prosperity will be based. Already many commodity prices have turned upward, the banking structure has been stabilized, some lines of business are beginning to show improvement, and confidence is reaching a rock bottom. Assurance is now given that hunger and destitution can be relieved through emergency loans to States, and employment will be furnished through an extensive program of self-liquidating projects. Much uncertainty is removed by the adjournment of Congress, and business will have a chance to push forward.

The hope of the country is centered in this constructive program. The public credit has been brought to the support of the American economic system. How else could the forces of depression be overcome? Politicians may offer chimerical schemes, but the public will be slow to turn away from the solid foundation of the Hoover plan unless something superior is brought forth. With his program already in operation, and with increasing evidence of its effectiveness, President Hoover has acquired a significant advantage in the coming political contest.

DE VALERA'S DREAM.

New light is thrown on the Anglo-Irish squabble by an interview granted to an American correspondent by President Eamon de Valera at Dublin. The irreconcilable Irish leader admits that his intention is to antagonize England and develop a barrier between them so that the Free State will be forced to develop into an independent and self-contained nation. Apparently Mr. de Valera's trips to London have not been made with a view to effecting any real compromise.

President de Valera objects to Ireland remaining "a ranch to supply Britain with foodstuffs". He has visions of the Free State becoming a great industrial country, inspired, no doubt, by Henry Ford. At present the Free State obtains nearly all of its manufactured goods from England, and sells most of its foodstuff there. Ninety-five per cent of the Free State's exports are purchased by Britain and Ulster, and 80 per cent of its imports are obtained from those close neighbors. One may easily understand what a tariff war between Britain and Ireland will mean.

If the Free State were comparable to the United States in extent and resources, the dream of Mr. de Valera would not be amiss. But the hope of transforming Southern Ireland into a self-contained empire of industry, commerce and agriculture is too fanciful to be taken seriously. The population of the Free State has dwindled to less than 3,000,000. It has a few industries, but is incapable of supplying essential manufactured goods. Mr. de Valera heroically closes his eyes to that fact, and plunges into economic war with Britain on the theory that such a course will develop Irish industry. Apparently the withholding of the land annuities and the attempt to abolish the oath of allegiance to the king are only incidents in his scheme of empire building.

The picture of such an ambitious statesman working with such inadequate material is pathetic. His aims and his resources are so far apart that nothing but disappointment can result.

LEAVING 97 TO RESCUE 3.

Senator Hull, who has become the chief spokesman of the Democratic party in the Senate on economic matters, made an emphatic outcry against the protective tariff in his address at the University of Virginia Institute. He referred to the Smoot-Hawley act as the "largest single underlying cause of the present panic," and declared that this issue is more important than all other major economic questions combined. In view of his reputation as an economist this line of attack from Senator Hull is somewhat strange.

The senator is alarmed about the "destruction of foreign trade," even though he is unable to show that any such destruction has taken place. He builds up a dramatic argument on a premise that has no foundation. A few facts from non-partisan sources should persuade him not to waste his energy in condemning a situation that does not exist.

A recent statement from the National Foreign Trade Council had this to say:

> Although the recession in American exports since 1929 has been substantial, it has been no greater in proportion than the reduction that has taken place during the same period in the amount of our domestic production as a whole. * * * Our exports bear the same proportion to our total manufactures today as they did before the depression, and are, therefore, founded on as firm a basis as the general level of our domestic business.

This statement confirms the findings of the Department of Commerce and all other impartial investigators. Exports have shrunk along with domestic business, and for exactly the same reasons. Imports have been reduced only about half as much as domestic business because falling prices have given foreign countries greater advantages in the American market.

Senator Hull's assumption that the tariff is responsible for this world-wide slump in all business does credit merely to his imagination. The senator must know that only 10 per cent of the business done by the American people crosses international boundaries. He must also be aware of the fact that more than two-thirds of the imports into the United States come in free. Records of the Department of Commerce show that the value of free imports has fallen off as much as has the value of dutiable goods. Would the senator ascribe the "destruction" of this commerce that is admitted free to the vicious Republican tariff?

It is an indisputable fact that only a little more than 3 per cent of the goods which enter into American commerce pay duties. Yet the economist from Tennessee proclaims that reduction of the tariff is the most important issue confronting the American people. He pleads for an enlargement of the 3 per cent of American business that must clear tariff hurdles, and implies that the 97 per cent on which no duties are paid is of little importance. Yet he is at a loss to understand why the American people do not agree with him.

Why will not the senator take cognizance of these facts? The answer must be that he has lost sight of the great domestic business which is carried on within the United States and has pinned his hopes for the future on the comparatively meager stream of overseas commerce. Some constituent might do Senator Hull a favor by reminding him that he was not elected to represent the Atlantic ocean, but to serve the American people.

CONGRESSIONAL "ECONOMY."

No slogan has been so popular in Congress as "economy." But, like most slogans, it has been repeated much and practiced little. It is surprising to the public, which has listened to the mouthings of politicians and has failed to follow carefully the details of legislation, to learn that the expiring Congress appropriated more money than any other peace-time Congress has ever done.

Some genuine savings have been made in the 1933 budget, but these were more than offset by the cost of relief legislation. A hasty calculation indicates that the appropriations of this Congress will total more than $5,500,000,000, which is about $558,000,000 more than was appropriated by the previous Congress.

About $200,000,000 was required to make loans on the bonus certificates in accordance with the act passed in 1931. More than $600,000,000 went to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and Federal Land Banks. Other special appropriations which do not figure in the budget brought the total expenditures of Congress during this session to an unusually high figure.

For the economies that were achieved due credit should be given. President Hoover trimmed $360,000,000 from the estimates before he sent the budget to Congress, and the Senate made drastic reductions in most of the supply bills. Congress did not enact much extravagant legislation, but it refused to effect some economies that could have been enacted without damage to the Government or its citizens. Every one talked economy, but only a few lawmakers gave practical cooperation to that end.

The extravagant legislation passed by the House and killed by the President or the Senate is more impressive than any list of economies put into operation. The House voted the pension measure for veterans' widows, children and parents, which would have cost $450,000,000 in ten years. It passed the Garner pork-barrel bill with an appropriation of $1,300,000,000, and the bonus measure, calling for $2,400,000,000. If all the legislation railroaded through the House by the Democratic leaders had become law the cost of the Government would have been doubled. It remains for the Democratic party to square this record with the demand in its platform for a 25 per cent reduction in governmental expenditures.

In general the appropriations made for relief have the public support. Government credit was necessary to bolster up the credit structure of the Nation and to keep some of its basic economic groups functioning. Yet relief expenditures have laid heavy burdens upon the people that can be justified only when the utmost economy is practiced in all branches of the Government.

The experience of the last year illustrates how difficult it is to reduce expenditures during a period of hard times. And during prosperous times politicians have no incentive to economize. Democrats who promise a slash of 25 per cent in the cost of Government must see some mirage that is hidden from the purview of practical-minded citizens.

PRACTICAL DIAMOND USES.

About 60 per cent of the diamonds mined today are used in industry. Henry Ford is the largest diamond buyer in the world. Every two months the diamond committee of the Dearborn factories selects the necessary stones from collections submitted by dealers. The cashier has a record of the number and types of stones in each package, but the names of the dealers are not revealed to the experts. The diamonds are used in various ways in the manufacture of automobiles.

The hardest, and therefore the best for industrial purposes, are the black stones from Brazil, but other good stones for such use are the grays and browns from the Transvaal and the Belgian Congo. These diamonds are used in bores, as nibs serving as points for master precision gauges, in the teeth of saws which cut stone and other hard materials, in drills, and in various other tools. The cutting and piercing value of the diamond is so great that, were it not for the cost, its field would be greatly extended.

Many experiments have been made with the hope of enlarging this field by producing low-cost diamonds artificially. Dr. Ralph H. McKee, professor of chemical engineering at Columbia University, tells how he made diamonds by imitating the original process of nature, when the gems were formed in the earth. He heated molten iron, containing carbon, silicon and phosphorus, to a high temperature in an electric furnace. This mixture was then poured into specially prepared shells of steel and securely sealed. As the mixture slowly cooled tremendous pressure developed within the shell.

When cold the enclosing metal was attacked with acid which ate away the iron, disclosing diamonds of a twentieth of a carat in size which had formed from the carbon precipitated by the silicon. This experiment, Dr. McKee believes, lays the ground for repeating the process on a larger scale with the expectation of producing larger stones. In any event he feels the manufacture of small stones can eventually be made in quantities to revolutionize present day industrial processes. Skeptics, however, contend that artificial diamonds will always cost more than they are worth.

THE WORLD NOT BROKE

From the Kansas City Star.

Experts in the Department of Commerce at Washington have compiled a balance sheet of the visible and invisible international exchanges of this country in 1931 from which it appears that American tourists spent 570 million dollars in foreign countries; immigrants in this country sent 173 million dollars to relatives and others abroad, and American citizens contributed 39 million dollars to missionary and charitable enterprises in foreign countries, a total of 782 million dollars, which went to foreigners for these three purposes.

In view of the widespread business depression which existed throughout last year in the United States, this purely noncommercial contribution to foreigners is an impressive evidence that a considerable portion of the people of the United States were prosperous. It also indicates that the difficulties of foreign countries in settling balances due in this country were materially modified by this movement of individual funds abroad, aside from the exchange of commodities and the financial transactions relating to securities, bank balances and other factors classed as invisible trade.

The entire balance sheet, which embraces merchandise imports and exports, movement of securities, interest payments, freight charges and a variety of minor items, shows that the United States had a credit for the year of 124 million dollars on all transactions, in the face of these large personal contributions to foreign countries and the withdrawal of 765 million dollars of foreign bank balances from this country.

The year's exports of merchandise exceeded imports by 334 million dollars, but this was more than offset by 548 million dollars of interest and dividends received by American citizens on investments abroad.

That foreign countries are still in possession of wealth to invest abroad is indicated by the exhibit of 589 million dollars of American stocks and bonds sold to foreigners, though this was partially offset by 495 million of American securities bought back from foreign holders.

Investors abroad repurchased from American owners 659 million dollars of foreign stocks and bonds, a total of 1,248 million dollars spent by foreigners for securities in the United States—another evidence that "Europe is not broke."

POST HASTE.

Of course, when he abandoned the House boat in the big wind, Admiral Garner hoped it would be rescued by some passing whim.

The greatest measure of relief is that expressed in sighs by a Nation delivered from congressional menace.

We're lucky, after all the financial frenzy on Capitol Hill, to get off with one abortive bill which, if not needed and ineffective, can't do much harm.

Cheer up, you might be Senator Couzens and have to explain to your banker friends today why you couldn't stop the home loan bill.

What an anticlimax! As the House makes final surrender in the superheated midnight closing hours, the Speaker is speeding westward in an air-cooled train to the happy fishing grounds.

Premier Herriot at last makes it clear he expects to return to the Young plan unless a "satisfactory" debt settlement is made with the United States. He might as well be on his way, for finding the Young plan again will require a long search.

At least "Yesterday in Congress" for quite a spell will only caption historical reminiscences.

Senator Borah was so busy messing around with the prohibitionists, silverites and inflationists that he couldn't get time to report on Judge Wilkerson's nomination.

Twenty-seven parties have entered tickets in the German elections, but here's the luck: The agony will be over on July 31—or just beginning.

The lone home bill set a record for holding an impatient Congress and in escaping both the avalanches of dirt piled on it and the scalping knives of the Indians.

There is no excuse for radio announcers with prepared speeches making so many mistakes in pernownshiashun.

You thought Col. House was now just a myth, but there he was waiting at the end of Gov. Roosevelt's voyage. Texas is on the job this year.

The delay in getting Sao Paulo revolution started seems to bear out the observation of one Latin-American expert that Brazilians enjoy fighting each other less than any other Latin Americans.

Now that Congress has adjourned and our banking and industrial magnates know what is not going to happen, we expect them to loosen up.

Chicago will be on the Reconstruction doorstep this morning. She has had so much unfavorable publicity, news that she wants the first handout will be a boost.

THE WORK OF SUMMER.

Comes summer to the world its work to do,
To bring fruition to the tiny seed;
To strew the earth with all that man may need;
To give the apple cheek its crimson hue
And the rich stores of golden grain renew;
To toil with patience and with certain speed
Without complaint o'er large or trivial deed,
And run in service here its brief course through.

I sometimes think that summer seems to know
It shall not live to see its tasks complete.
It lays its glories gained at Autumn's feet,
And is content in having labored so,
As some tired father when his time is done,
Who leaves to those he loves the treasures won.

You Can't Make a Horse Drink, But You Can Make Him Thirsty

By ROBERT QUILLEN

EACH of us does the thing he wishes to do.

A man is square because he wishes to be square or he is a rogue because he wishes to be a rogue. He is a product of his own desires.

You hear a great deal about the sense of duty and obligation and the doing of right for right's sake, but the simple truth is that no man does the right thing unwillingly.

It is easy to fool yourself, if you do not analyze your motives, but you can't change the fact. Whether you do right as a reluctant concession to some code of morality or brazenly do wrong and later invent a sophistry to justify yourself, it is desire alone that overcomes your temptations or your scruples and directs your action.

But, you say, it is the fear of punishment that does more than anything else to keep people in the path of virtue. That is one way of saying it. Another and more exact way is to say that people who feel a desire to do wrong are saved by a stronger desire to keep out of jail or preserve the good opinion of their neighbors.

A youth of good family and excellent breeding, reduced to penury by the collapse of security values, is greatly tempted to marry for money, but eventually elects to remain poor. How could that decision be a product of desire when the youth most ardently desires to escape poverty and live at his accustomed ease? Perhaps he couldn't explain it. But the motive that determines his choice is a desire to keep his self-respect and he can not do that if he violates the decent traditions of his family.

There you have the only successful method of forming sound character. It does not consist in admonition or threat, but in the implanting of right desires.

Where do youngsters get the desires that keep them clean and make them successful? Doubtless they absorb most of them from their environment. If the environment is repulsive, the desire for better things may be drawn from books or schools or chance acquaintances. It may be inspired by envy or hate or love or shame.

But whatever their source may be, the desires of the heart will determine the life that is lived. For desire is the motive of all human activities—of greed and generosity, of achievement and of martyrdom.

You can't make a cadet a gentleman by act of Congress, but you can somehow give him the desire to be a gentleman and desire will do the rest.

PRO AND CON

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Why France Insists.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

The French have never quite forgiven the British for settling their war debt to America in 1923 instead of holding up and opposing payment as France and other European nations did. This action on the part of Great Britain has been described by French writers as a "desertion of Europe."

French diplomacy has waited for nine years to get the whip hand over England on the war-debt issue. The French believe that they now have it and insist upon their interpretation of the accord despite denials from England.

St. Lawrence in Politics.

Brooklyn Eagle.

President Hoover in announcing that treaty terms have been agreed upon by Canada and the Federal Government for the St. Lawrence waterways project offers to Gov. Roosevelt a political issue that, we imagine, will be welcomed.

Mr. Hoover, through his agents, has arranged the number of dams to be built, has provided for the allotment of 2,000,000 horsepower from a border river of New York State, and has fixed with Canadian assistance the division of costs. He has slighted the asserted right and interest of New York State in her borderline. He has refused to confer with New York's governor on the question involved. That this will be a heavy weight for him to carry when he asks New York's electoral vote can hardly be denied.

Explanations Don't Explain.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Few who have read the understandings which emerged from Lausanne will take much stock in the various and sundry "explanations" that have been attempted. The "gentlemen's agreement" is plainly an attempt to put the onus for failure of the Lausanne agreement upon the United States. Otherwise, there is no sense to it.

Baffled by Beer.

Kansas City Star.

It was cruel but logical for Senator Bingham to put the Democratic members of the Senate on the rack by forcing a vote on beer. Of course, the Democratic platform calls for beer, and more, immediately; and it might be assumed that the members of the party in Congress would be willing to do what was humanly possible to comply with the platform mandate.

Yet it seems obvious that the majority of the Senate Democrats were hesitant because of the vast uncertainty as to where their constituents stood. They were not ready to accept their party plank at its face value. They would hear from the people back home first. That position is entirely understandable. But it is suggestive of the delicate position in which the ardent platform framers placed their fellow party members in Congress.

Saving Dry Congressmen.

New York Times.

While a perfunctory indorsement of the Republican ticket is still possible, it seems likely that the chief efforts of the prohibition organizations will be spent this year in congressional elections. Here recent events suggest that they will find plenty of work awaiting them, even in constituencies which have long been regarded as safely dry.

Experimental, As It Were.

Uncle Sam has at last found out about this gas tax racket the States have been enjoying a monopoly of. Our Uncle has started his ante at one cent and goodness knows what he will raise it to later.

The noise of the convention floor doesn't count as much, after all, as the whisper in the hotel room. First there was much ado and then there was McAdoo.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Jim Walton, of Mississippi, Tells Why He Will Vote Republican Ticket.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I'm Southern born and Southern raised, and therefore supposed to be a dyed-in-the-wool Democrat. Well, I'm not. Neither am I a Republican. Age and experience have made me an independent.

I have the honor of being the only man living who heard Lincoln's inaugural address March 4, 1861, and in all these years I've learned a few things. When it comes to voting, I no longer follow the party leadership, but I use my own head. Sometimes I'm wrong, but not often.

My plan, born of experience, is to select the platform of the party that gives the most for the money. I vote on the same principle that I use in buying commodities and merchandise. The party platform is the merchandise and my vote is the purchasing power. I'm a nominal dry. I've always favored the submission of the prohibition question to the voters for ratification. However, I do not expect the American people to reject prohibition and return to open saloons.

The Democratic party, in its platform, offers me whisky, a commodity that I do not want; and then flashes a six-footer in my face and tells me to take it or lose my life. The Republican party applying the fundamentals of Americanism, says, "Here's the commodity. Take it or reject it." I chose to reject it and will vote the Republican ticket in November not because Hoover is the nominee, but because the platform is the goods both in quantity and quality that I'm looking for in exchange for my vote. Thousands of others in the South will do as I am going to do.

Cowboy and Quaker Scrap Described by Old-Timer—Oh, Boy!

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: My earliest recollection goes back to a farm near Indianapolis, on the national road. I can still see our old dog creeping under the barn to hide from a noisy crowd of farmers gathered around a hay wagon on the road, from which a spellbinder was urging the election of Abraham Lincoln. Once again the time rolls around for the stump speaker, and during the coming three months the campaign orators will enthrall the multitudinous idle people, still hopeful and patriotic. It ought to be a good year for the spellbinder, for the American people dearly love the fluent speaker, and will gather in crowds to be entertained if not edified.

If I had my way and were young again, I should like to take the stump Graham MacNamee style and graphically picture the expiring throes of Congress and the spirited scrap between the cowboy statesman from Texas, Jack Nance Garner, and the quiet but vigorous Quaker, Herbert Hoover. Oh, what a fight! They enter the ring fiddling and feinting with their lefts and rights, boxing for an opening. Garner leads with his pork bill—gets knocked down for his trouble—is up and leads with his loans to individuals. Oh, boy! Gets a hard left hook on the jaw and goes down and out. What's this? Franklin Roosevelt, candidate for President, jumps in with an invitation to be invited by Hoover to talk St. Lawrence navigation matters. Gets a right cross counter on the nose and leaves for his vacation. Oh, boy, what a Quaker!

EMOLAS.

There Must Be Cooperation Between Banks and Small Business Men in Order to Reach Better Times.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The last sentence of your editorial, "Inflation Nonsense," in your edition of July 13, is a truth which has impressed itself upon me very forcibly: "Nothing can be gained by adding to the amount of currency lying idle in bank vaults."

The small business man is the salt of the earth. To him we must look for lifting us out of the depression. The large manufacturer and the large agriculturist can not afford to proceed under present conditions, but the little business man who is inured to risks and failures is able to proceed. In most cases he is willing to risk his all if he could only obtain some financial assistance. It is undeniable that the assistance which he has received in the past from his bank he can not now obtain even though he might be in a potentially stronger position than he was three years ago.

Unless and until the small business man, in countless numbers, is given encouragement in a substantial manner, there is no way out of the present economic difficulties except the further decline and sacrifice of valuable property rights by all classes. The shrinkage of value can only be stopped by activity. The only class able to become active is that which includes the small business man.

The conclusion is unavoidable that if the banks and the small business man will cooperate, a start will be made toward better times.

Says Women of Louisiana Will Vote Republican Ticket to Oust Long.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: We, the women of Louisiana, would like you to publish this letter in your paper.

The women of Louisiana (mostly Democrats) are going to the polls in November and vote the Republican ticket. We are now organizing against the present Democratic administration in Louisiana because Long is at the head of it and we feel that a vote for Roosevelt is a vote for Long. Long has done more to wreck the State of Louisiana than any man born in it. If we can turn Louisiana Republican and get rid of Long, we will do it.

NEW YORK SALUTES ARIAS, RULER-ELECT

21 Guns Boom for Panama's Next President; To Visit White House.

New York, July 17 (A.P.).—The presidential salute of 21 guns boomed into the harbor's Sunday silence today, when the United Fruit liner Quirigua, bearing President-elect Harmodio Arias of Panama passed Governors Island.

Mr. Arias and his party and the reception committee that met the ship at Quarantine all stood at attention on the ship's bridge as the vessel steamed past the island.

The visitor, who is here unofficially, will remain in New York a few days and then go on to Washington, where he will be received by President Hoover.

Gov. Juan Antonius Jiminez of Panama and Edward M. Sosa, the president-elect's secretary, accompanied him here.

On the reception committee were M. J. Patterson, Undersecretary of State; George F. Mand, chairman of the mayor's reception committee; Capt. W. R. Sayles, representing the United States Navy; Col. H. W. Miller, representing the United States Army; Horatio F. Alfaro, Panama Minister to the United States, and John B. Chevalien, secretary of the Panama Legation.

Mr. Alfaro will be Mr. Arias' host in Washington.

When the Quirigua docked at 10:30 a. m., six limousines and a motorcycle escort of police awaited the party, which then went to the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

PRESIDENT JOINS FIRST LADY IN CAMP

tomorrow afternoon. There was a bare possibility he might stay at camp until Tuesday morning, returning just in time for the regular Cabinet meeting.

His only guests at the camp are Mr. and Mrs. Mark Sullivan.

According to the Fairfax County Police, who were called to the scene of the accident at which President Hoover stopped yesterday, the crash occurred on the Lee highway near the Stone House in Prince William County. They stated that the Platt car was being driven by Mrs. Charles D. Perry, of 11212 Euclid street, Forest Hills, N. Y.

The police said the Platt car attempted to pass a large milk truck and struck the guard rail over Youngs Branch, on the left side of the highway, knocking over eight of the guard posts. It then swerved to the right, striking the Waters car and knocking over four more guard posts. Both cars were demolished. The injured were brought to the Emergency Hospital in Washington by Fairfax County Policeman Lewis L. Finks.

SUMMER FESTIVAL DANCES ANNOUNCED

Program at Sylvan Theater to Feature Interpretations of Music.

Dance interpretations of classical and modern music of many lands will feature the third summer festival program at the Sylvan Theater, Washington Monument Grounds, Wednesday evening at 8:15 o'clock. They will be presented by Marian Chace and Lester Shafer and their Washington Denishawn group of 30 trained dancers.

"The Flight of the Gulls," feature of last season's Bal Boheme, will be presented as the opening number. The number is one of the outstanding arrangements of Ruth St. Denis. Miss Chace will dance the solo part, assisted by six dancers.

Mr. Shafer, Betty Chown and Amalie Preische will render "A Bavarian Holiday." The choreography for it was written by Ted Shawn after a long study in Europe of peasant dances.

Other numbers will be "Study in Red," to be danced by Mr. Shafer, music by MacDowell; "Valse de Concert," Mr. Shafer, Peggy Kriz and nine girls; a pastorale, "Idyll," danced to music by Stoughton, and many other classic terpsichorean interpretations.

The Sylvan Theater summer festival programs are presented under auspices of the Community Center Department and the Office of Public Buildings and Parks, assisted by the National Capital Civic Fund.

Paris Reopening Probe Of U.S. Woman's Death

Paris, July 17 (U.P.).—Paris police resumed investigation today of the strange death of Mrs. Kay Whelan Gordon-Ellis, daughter of the American Cigar Store magnate, Frederick Whelan.

She died at the American Hospital last week, apparently from an overdose of a sleeping potion. After a preliminary investigation police of the suburb of Neuilly closed the case, discarding the theory of foul play. Subsequent developments, however, caused headquarters here to reopen the investigation.

A CUTE pantie rig, that's just a wee bit different. It's highly practical besides being so cunning.

The dress with just easy-to-handle box plaits can be slipped off in a jiffy. And hey, presto! a darling sun suit, so Old Sol can get on with tanning as efficiently as possible. The shoulder straps, by the way, unbutton to allow the head to pass.

A cotton print in pink and white, plain white collar, with white coarse net used for the waist of the sun suit made the original.

This healthful sun-suit ensemble was designed by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Style No. 2877 comes in sizes 1, 2 and 4 years.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

TEN years of regular agricultural broadcasts will be celebrated today when the National Farm and Home Hour is presented by Station KDKA, in Pittsburgh, pioneer in the field. Although the rangs of Station WRC is not great enough to include many farmers, the Farm and Home Hour has been transmitted by it faithfully every week day during this period. The reason is that a large number of the speakers are representatives of the Department of Agriculture and go on from Washington. These speakers are arranged for and material for a portion of this hour is furnished by Morse Salisbury, in charge of radio activities for the Department of Agriculture, which cooperates with NBC in preparation of these broadcasts.

The special program today (WRC, 12:30 p. m.) will depict the development of the farm broadcast from its beginning in 1922 at the present time. Frank E. Mullen, first agricultural reporter for KDKA and now director of NBC farm programs, will speak during the broadcast, as will E. S. Bayard, editor of the Pennsylvania Farmer, and others who have been instrumental in building agricultural broadcasting up to its present position.

The Farm and Home Hour is heard regularly by many thousands of farmers in every part of the country, since it has a Nation-wide hook-up of 53 stations for every program.

SONGS of the rockbound coast of Maine will be featured when the Tree State joins this musical tour of the Nation (WRC, 8:30 o'clock tonight. Carolyn Andrews, soprano, and Alden Edkins, bass-barytone, with the orchestra under the direction of Frank Black, will furnish the musical part of the program.

Taking time off from his favorite pastime—a game of golf—while on his vacation at home in Richmond, Ind., Singin' Sam will offer the current hit, "The Sun's in My Heart," "Lady I Love," "I Got Rings on My Fingers" and "Boy of Mine" during his fifteen-minute appearance tonight (WMAL, 7:15 o'clock).

The Hawaiian Melody Boys believe they have set up some kind of a record. They have been on WMAL intermittently for more than five years. But they still haven't equaled Ambrose Durkin, soloist at Epiphany Church. Durkin not only was one of the first artists on WMAL, but was featured on old WCAP, second oldest station here.

HAVING completed his 165th talk on "The Real George Washington," Charles Colfax Long has also terminated the series, which were presented by the NBC as a sustaining feature in connection with the Bicentennial of the birth of George Washington.

Mr. Long's farewell program on Saturday was brightened by another appearance of the Washington Singers, a new male quartet, which has real possibilities. Harold Veo, well-known radio orchestra conductor, directs and makes arrangements for the Singers. They are Jack Laster, first tenor; William Shanahan, second tenor; Sanford Wells, barytone, and Thomas Leef, bass. George F. Ross is the accompanist.

Those Boswell Sisters will attempt to convince you to head South when they appear with Norman Brokenshire and Nat Shilkret for "Music That Satisfies" at 9 o'clock tonight through Station WMAL. The harmony trio will sing "Alabammy Bound," "'Neath the Sheltering Palms" and "South in My Soul."

Alice Remsen, contralto, will sing "Masquerade" and "Rain, Rain, Go Away" during the Evening in Paris dance program over WMAL at 8:30 o'clock tonight.

WJZ program notes for tonight—Symphonic arrangements of Handy's "St. Louis Blues" and Liszt's "Liebestraum," presenting the Chicago a Cappella Choir of 50 voices, directed by Noble Cain, and an orchestra, will highlight the program at 7 p. m. * * * The story of a young city girl, who went into the desert to fight a long, uphill battle against ill health, will be told by the Old Ranger in the Death Valley Days program at 7:30 p. m. * * * The old favorite, "I'm Afraid to Go Home in the Dark," will be sung by Big Bill Childs just before he goes into his dance during the Minstrel Show at 8 p. m. * * *

NATS TROUNCE BROWNS, 9-2, TO WIN 9TH STRAIGHT

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

NINE straight victories by the Nats still leave them ten games behind the Yankees, but New York is finding the going a bit rougher with the absence of Bill Dickey. The Yanks required twelve innings to beat the lowly White Sox in the first game yesterday and then eked out only a 3-2 win in the second.

When better catches than Sam West's in the second inning are made by an outfielder, Sammy West will probably make them. He speared Melillo's liner a yard from the fence after a week-end trip. In fairness to the opposition, West ought to take the magnet out of his glove.

It was quite a catch. When Melillo socked the ball, Jim Gould, St. Louis reporter, in the press box, exclaimed: "There's one that even the great West won't get." Oh, yeah.

It wasn't the Browns that got to Monte Weaver in the seventh inning. It was the heat. Weaver had allowed only three hits and seemed to be in command of the situation when Johnson detected a wild streak that was slowly making headway.

Joe Kuhel will have Joe Judge glued to the bench for the rest of the season at the rate he performed yesterday. His double with the bases full and two out in the second inning broke up the ball game as far as this department is concerned.

Dave Harris prefers Walter Stewart to any other pitcher in the league. Stewart was able to get him out only twice all last season. Stewart walked him in the first two times up yesterday. Then Dave singled and in his farewell appearance bunted a fly a dozen rows up into the left field bleachers for his fifth homer of the season.

Why is Buddy Myer leading the league in triples? Because he picks 'em up and lays 'em down like he does. His three-bagger in the first was a double for 90 per cent of the ball players in the league, but to Myer it was merely something to stretch into a triple.

All that Myer did to help the Nats win their ninth straight was slam a single, double and triple, score two runs and figure in two lightning double plays. Other than that, he was useless.

Goose Goslin made two valiant bids for home runs in the ninth. They went over the right field fence, both foul by 10 feet. Just a couple of patriotic blows, Uncle Sam netting 12½ cents per swat, that being the new 10 per cent tax on sports equipment with big league balls selling at $1.25 apiece.

This department heard a woman fan ask a question that was the prize of all silly questions ever asked by women at ball games. "Who plays third base when the third baseman is at bat" she wanted to know.

Eastern League Quits; Yesterday's Games Last

New York, July 17 (U.P.).—The Eastern Baseball League decided today to give up its attempt to carry out the remainder of the 1932 season, because of financial difficulties.

Today's games, therefore, were the last of the season throughout the league.

While the various clubs had been in difficulties for several weeks, this action was precipitated when the New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers, two major league clubs, gave up their interests in the Bridgeport and Hartford clubs, respectively. They turned back their franchises to the league.

The executive committee indicated Hartford, Bridgeport, Springfield, Albany and Richmond would be able to meet their financial obligations, while Allentown, Norfolk and New Haven might not.

Movies of Olympic Trials Reveal Officials Erred in Placing of U. S. Runners

Findings Affect Only Fourth and Fifth Men in Sprints.

Dyer, Kiesel Named on Relay Despite Their Failures.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Palo Alto, Calif., July 17 (A.P.).—Still feeling the emotional reaction to the record-shattering as well as heart-breaking features of the final tryouts, the American Olympic track and field team, its complexion slightly changed by two removals and three additions, was completed today.

Exactly 68 athletes occupying 71 places in 23 separate events, ranging in ages from 17 to 40, and representative of every major athletic center of the Nation, will accept the challenges of the rest of the world in the tenth Olympiad program at Los Angeles starting two weeks from today.

Olympic and amateur athletic union officials who ruled the two-day combination meet emerged with several interesting findings after grappling with problems arising from the final hectic battle for places, witnessing the motion picture review of finishes and ruling on protests.

Two Californians were added to the team and one removed.

Dyer and Kiesel Named.

Hec Dyer, of the Los Angeles A. C., and Bob Kiesel, University of California sprinter, both defeated in the 200-meter final, were selected to run on the 400-meter relay to which Emmett Toppino, of New Orleans, and Frank Wykoff, of Southern California, already had been named. In the hop, step and jump, Sol. "Happy" Furth, of the New York Athletic Club, was substituted as third entry for Levi Casey, of Los Angeles, "for reasons best known to the athlete Casey and to the committee."

The change in the sprinting forces involved the elimination from the team of James Johnson, Illinois State Normal Negro, who ran sixth and last in the finals of both the 100 and 200 meter dashes.

Head Coach Lawson Robertson recommended that the last three finalists in the 100 meters automatically be given relay places, with a fourth selection from other talent, but the Olympic committee overruled this in selecting Dyer and Kiesel.

For its championship records, the A. A. U. officials changed the order of finish, in respect to fourth and fifth places, in both sprints, after examining the motion pictures. The films showed clearly Toppino led Wykoff by nearly a foot for fourth place in the 100. They also revealed Dyer was fourth and Kiesel fifth in the 200. The human eyes at the finish had ruled just the opposite yesterday.

Metcalfe's Victory No Fluke.

The pictures simultaneously showed there was no doubt as to the vital first three places in each dash, in which Ralph Metcalfe, the sensational Marquette Negro, twice led home Eddie Tolan and George Simpson by decisive margins.

Glen Hardin, Louisiana State freshman, who finished first in the 400-meter hurdles final, was disqualified from the national championship competition by the A. A. U. for illegally crossing into another lane and clearing the wrong hurdles. Inasmuch as only three finished in this race, Hardin retained his place on the Olympic team, but the ruling automatically gave the national title and medal to the second man, Joe Healey, of the New York A. C.

Morgan Taylor, the Illinois A. C. veteran who was partially blocked by Hardin, was the other qualifier for the team. The fourth finalist, Gene Beatty, Michigan Normal Negro, also was disqualified from scoring in the A. A. U. competition because he was helped back on the track after falling over the final hurdles and collapsing.

The 110-meter high hurdles involved the closest finish over which there was dispute.

Beard Beat Out Grant.

Jack Keller, of Ohio State, and George Saling, of Iowa, first and second, were clearly in front of all others, but the pictures, in substantiating the judges' decision, showed Percy Beard, the national champion, beat out Byron Grant, of Utah, and Johnny Morriss, of Louisiana, by the width of his chest.

Grant protested, asserting he was third, but the films indicated clearly he was beaten by Beard and possibly by Morriss.

"Camera Clock" Casts Doubt on Carr's Mark

Palo Alto, Calif., July 17 (A.P.).—Although it took nothing away from the convincing character of his performance, comparison of the official hand-timing with "camera clock" figures cast doubt today on the world record credited to Bill Carr in his conquest of Ben Eastman.

Carr, Pennsylvania flier, was timed in 46.9 seconds, beating the listed world mark of 47 seconds flat, set by Bud Spencer on the same track in 1928. The electro-photographic device, used experimentally, caught Carr in 47.11 seconds. This was the reverse of the comparison at Berkeley, where Carr was timed at 47 seconds for the 440 by hand and 46.88 by the cameras.

The comparisons, given out by Drundage, follow:

Event in meters and winner, official hand time, camera clock time.

Speeding Indians Beat Red Sox, 5 to 4, 8 to 6

Boston, July 17 (A.P.).—The Cleveland Indians took both games of a double-header from the Boston Red Sox today by scores of 5-4 and 8-6. Cleveland now has won 12 out of its last 14 games on the road.

It took the Indians 11 innings to take the measure of the beleaguered tail-enders in the second game. The Indians made five runs in the first three innings off Weiland who then was replaced by Durham. The Indians then were held scoreless until the fatal eleventh when Moore, who had relieved Durham, weakened and allowed Cleveland to score three runs.

In the first game Oliver crashed into the fence to spear a long drive and rob Averill of a home run. He continued to play during the first game but did not appear for the second.

TWO HOMERS FOR FOXX; A'S WIN

Tigers Bow, 4-3, as Mack Star Hits Nos. 37 and 38.

DETROIT, July 17 (A.P.).—Jimmy Foxx blasted out home runs Nos. 37 and 38 today and the Philadelphia Athletic defeated the Tigers, 4 to 3, in a one-game series.

Foxx had the assistance of Heving in the run-making department. After the catcher had doubled twice without figuring in the scoring, he singled in the eighth to drive in the two runs which tied and then won the game. It gave Heving a perfect day at bat.

Mahaffey held the Tigers to seven hits, one of them a home run by Johnny Stone in the first inning and another a triple by the same batter.

World's Water Speed Record to Kaye Don

London (Monday), July 18 (A. P.).—Kaye Don, noted British speedboat pilot, broke the world's water speed record at Loch Lomond this morning with his boat, Miss England III.

The figures were not announced immediately, but Arthur Gray, who was appointed by the Marine Motoring Association to supervise Don's attempt, announced by a signal that the record was broken.

A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Agency said Don's speed on the first run, from the south to the north end of the course, was 117.10 miles per hour, and on the run from the north to the south end, 117.76.

New York, July 17 (A.P.).—The Yankees took both ends of today's double-header with the Chicago White Sox, the first 4 to 3 in 12 innings and the nightcap, 3 to 2.

Babe Ruth's single scored Earle Combs with the winning run in the twelfth inning of the opener, after the Sox had rallied in the ninth to drive Herb Pennock from the box and tie the score.

Charlie Ruffing and Ted Lyons engaged in a pitchers' battle in the nightcap, Ruffing winning his own game by singling in the eighth with the bases loaded.

THE Dixie Pigs continued their triumphant march to the title in Section A of the unlimited division of the Capital City League yesterday, beating the Union Printers, 12-2. City Cab obtained revenge on Congress Heights for a previous defeat by winning, 6-5, while Ciro's Villagers were outslugging the Horning Jewelers, 13-10.

In Section B, the pennant hopes of Rock Creek Servicenter all but faded as Federal Storage garnered a 4-3 victory, while the leading Columbia Heights aggregation was chalking up its eighth consecutive victory at the expense of the hapless Diamond Cab nine, 15-3. St. Joseph's checked a Franc rally in the ninth inning to turn back the Jewelers, 5-4.

The Dixies clinched the decision over the printers with a rally in the fourth inning that produced four runs. Eddie Dove and "Fee" Collier led the assault on Jeffries and Heany. "Lefty" Jones set down the losers with five hits, fanning seven.

JOE AND ASBESTOS

(Watch Sunday's Post for New Secret Code) —By Ken Kling

Asbestos blew eight bucks on a 4-to-1 shot Saturday and hasn't cooled out yet. The bank roll went to $56.59 and he is burning up. Joe's system bank roll is $241.25 and his horses today are Magnifico, Back Log, Foxy Burt, Poppyman, Golden Fate and Bonny Maureen.

AT THE POST
with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL: ARLINGTON PARK, CHICAGO, JULY 17.

Got off to a fine start Saturday with six out of six in the money and the winners of the first two races. But was not so good the rest of the way. My horses staggered into the money but they did me little good. Top Flight did a tailspin after giving me some high hopes.

Here's some at the other track that may prove interesting: Walter H., Happy Warrior, Ultramarine, Sandwrack, Baggage Miss, Sizzling. BILL.

FIRST RACE—POPPYMAN, with Coucci expected to ride, appears to be well suited in this test for maiden juveniles. HOPE TO DO, second in his last three tries, is the one to beat. Turned in a nice job the last time. ARROWSWIFT for third and a first place possibility.

SECOND RACE—Tossing ESKIMO'S last in the gutter. This one drops 5 pounds from his last winning performance and needs only to run back to that race to take care of these. However, ESKIMO and NELLIE CUSTIS, my second pick, are well down on the list and may not get in. The latter was clocked 1:12 passing the 6-furlong mark at Washington Park and may upset the top one. FERVOR for third and all if the others are scratched.

THIRD RACE—MAGNIFICO seems a shade the best of this small field and probably will be a short-priced favorite. KARL EITEL has shown flashes of speed that may carry him into the place. PANCHO LOPEZ is hitting his stride and is dangerous.

FOURTH RACE—EPITHET drops a lot of weight and this way rigged appears to be a standout in this mile test. FALL APPLE gets in with only 102 pounds and is going to make it hot for the top one at some stages. DARK HOPE for the show.

FIFTH—LIQUEUR is forced to pick up a bundle that totals 117 pounds today but I'm sticking to this young gelding. Should be a long price and I recommend an across the board play. ROMAN HOLIDAY and IDEALIST to battle for the second money.

SIXTH RACE—FLAG TRICK'S fine race in the Arlington Oaks earns a top selection in this. Believe UNENCUMBERED will be the one to beat. TROMBONE is long overdue and may be third.

SEVENTH RACE—PRINCE ATHELING, winner of seven races this year and generally in much swifter company, seems a lock in this race. Any price will be a good one. KNEE HIGH'S last was a beaut. Gets in here with only a feather. MODERN TIMES for third.

DOR-A continued its dash toward the second series championship in the senior division of the Capital City League by winning over the Takoma Tigers, 8 to 4, in a well-played game yesterday. Koontz Service vanquished Swann Service, 5 to 3, to retain its chance of tying for the title.

Bob Ruble limited the Tigers to six hits in chalking up his third consecutive league victory. He retired ten opponents on strikes. Burdick led the assault on Turner, who pitched for Takoma, driving out three hits, including a home run.

Koontz Service hopped on Kingman for three runs in the third inning of its game with Swann to clinch the decision. Plumb and Davis divided mound duties for the victors, holding their opponents to six hits. Plumb fanned eleven batters. Seibert, Swann second sacker, had his eye on the ball, connecting safely on each of three trips to the plate.

THE Wonder Bread midgets strengthened their hold on the first place in the race for the second half championship of the midget division of the Capital City League by nosing out Goodacre's, 6-5, in a well played game yesterday. Arlington Post moved into second place by walloping Thompson's Furniture Co., 12-4.

The Wonder Bread-Goodacre fray was headed for extra innings until Billy Harris came to bat in the ninth inning with the score tied and one man on second. He poled a long double to left-center to score the winning tally.

Cuozzo Gets 3 Hits For Losers.

Charley Cuozzo led the losers at bat with three hits in four appearances at the plate, while Webb was best for the winners in this respect. Roddy Bell and "Bubber" Wiles hurled for the Breadmen.

Arlington Post was never hard pressed in scoring over Thompson's. A home run by Coppage featured the attack. A two-run attack in the fourth inning decided the issue. Gunther's two hits in four times at bat topped the efforts of the losers.

JUNIOR NINES REGISTER UPSETS

Mt. Rainiers Defeat Georgetown in Feature, 4-2.

FAVORITES fell by the wayside as the race for the second half championship in the junior division of the Capital City League got under way yesterday. Mount Rainier scored the biggest upset of the day in turning back Georgetown, first-half champions, 4-2. Fussell-Young walloped Dixie Polish, 11-2, Southwest Merchants nosed out Wheeler Club, 9-8, and Swann Service swamped Dor-A, 12-4, in the other games.

Frank Mathias held Georgetown to seven hits to win for Mount Rainier. He was given fine support by his mates both afield and at bat. Green led the attack on "Brick" Hayes with three hits.

Nock Big Noise for Fussell-Youngs.

Artie Nock was the big gun in the Fussell-Young triumph. He drove out three hits in five attempts. Greiner was in rare form on the mound, holding his opponents to five widely scattered blows.

Little Jimmy DeChard frequently was in trouble on the hill while opposing the Wheeler Club sluggers, but he managed to bear down in the pinches to bag the decision. Pell and Hartnett found Garner's offerings much to their liking and collected three hits each to top the attack.

Burke's homer and the hitting of Gebhardt and Neri featured Swann Service's victory. McDonald held the losers to seven scattered safeties, three of which were credited to Stan Bowers.

SINS ON OURSELVES HELD ORIGIN OF EVIL

Dr. Ulysses G. B. Pierce Is Speaker at Mt. Pleasant Union Service.

All sinning has its origin in our own sins against ourselves," declared Dr. Ulysses G. B. Pierce, preaching yesterday in All Souls' Unitarian Church at a union service with the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church and the Universalist National Memorial Church.

"What we consider social sins are in the final analysis sins against ourselves," Dr. Pierce continued.

"One of the chief ways in which we sin is in our contemptuous and inadequate idea of ourselves. Even religion has had its part in spreading this idea. But we do not need the new psychology to tell us that we are what we think we are, that if we discredit ourselves we will be discredited. However, there has ever been in man a divine fire which presses him upward.

" 'Man is not man as yet,' that is, he is in process of achieving more and more of the divine possibilities which reside in every individual. We sin against ourselves when we fail to appreciate these possibilities and to strive toward their realization.

In the trash heaps near Oxyrinchas, Egypt, in 1904 there were discovered fragments from manuscripts upon which many of the changes in new translations of the Bible have been based. Among such significant changes is one in the twelfth chapter of the epistle to the Hebrews which speaks of the opposition Jesus encountered from 'sinners against themselves.' "

HIGH SCHOOL P.-T.A. INDORSES PARK FUND

Supports Col. Grant's Plan to Use Part of $350,000 to Provide Jobs.

Cordial support of a plan advanced to the District Commissioners to spend a large portion of the $350,000 recently voted by Congress for District relief work in employing jobless men on public park and playground improvements has been given by the Roosevelt High School Parent-Teacher Association.

In a letter to the District Commissioners, officers of the association voiced indorsement of the "splendid program advanced by Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, who has asked the Commissioners for an adequate sum from the $350,000 appropriation recently made available by Congress to give men work in the parks and public school playgrounds of the District of Columbia."

Edward R. Williams, president of the group and a strong advocate of increased recreational facilities here, said there are at least 40 parks and playgrounds in sore need of improvements.

During last year numerous men were put to work on playground and park work, Mr. Williams declared. He said on the Eckington Center project alone a large group of jobless obtained several months work.

Attention was called to the recent appeal of Mrs. Philip Sidney Smith, Board of Education member, to the need for reterracing of the new lawns at Roosevelt High School where rain erosions are causing damage.

JESUS OMNIPRESENT IS TOPIC OF SERMON

Rev. J. W. Babbitt Preaches on Futility Trying to Avoid His Spirit.

"It is impossible for any of us to so live that we may avoid Christ Jesus," said the Rev. J. Woodman Babbitt, preaching yesterday at the Covenant-First Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Mr. Babbitt's topic was "The Christ We Can Not Avoid." His text was taken from the twenty-sixth verse of the twentieth chapter of the Book of John, "Then came Jesus, the doors being shut, and stood in the midst."

The Rev. Mr. Babbitt said, in part: "Turn your eyes where you will, in any direction, you can not escape His presence. Every pathway leads to Him. He linked His life with human life at every point. No matter how hostile or indifferent we may want to be toward Him, we have to say, 'Whither shall I flee from thy spirit?' He is unavoidable in all human life. He has made it impossible forever for us to think of any aspect of human life without thinking of Him. Where life is, there is Christ.

Many Avoid Church.

"You may avoid the church, and how many are doing that, thinking that by staying away from the worship in the sanctuary they can avoid Jesus. You may avoid the minister, and how often we see people cross the street in order to avoid meeting us. You may avoid the company of Christian people and find your social life among people of the world, but you can not avoid Jesus Christ.

"Tomorrow you will go down into the business life of the city. You will enter your office or your warehouse. You will close the door. You will say 'Here at last I am safe from the impertinent interruption of babblers on religion, the Ten Commandments and the Golden Rule. If I choose to cheat and drive a hard bargain that is my affair. Who is to hinder me? If I want to be unjust and get even and rapacious and crowd the poor and snatch at every mean advantage in these trying economic times, who is to know?'

Penetrates Deepest Darkness.

"No matter how dark the heart or the place, even with the doors shut, Christ is there. There is no place so dark but that Jesus can make it light. As I bring you His message this morning asking for your full consent of heart, mind and soul to Him and to His cause, let me finish my text, 'Then came Jesus, the doors being shut, and stood in the midst and saying, "Peace be unto you." ' When Jesus enters into your life and mind, there and then there is the peace of God that passes all understanding."

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

IT seems that Washington was luckier than it knew last season in being privileged to view the revival of Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice," in which Maude Adams returned to the stage, after an absence of thirteen years, in association with Otis Skinner. Although elaborate plans were announced from time to time for the presentation of that revival in New York, it never reached Manhattan.

Miss Adams, however, has not definitely stricken Gotham from her future itineraries. In September, according to latest report, she will regale the metropolis with a revival of Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night," the "Merchant" apparently being finally off the New York lists. In this new production, which Miss Adams herself will supervise, she will be supported by Elsie Ferguson and Mary Nash, provided, of course, that present hopes eventuate successfully. This will mark Maude Adams' first Broadway appearance in fifteen years.

Reviving memories of the days when they were a part of the greatest army Uncle Sam ever mustered, in the mightiest conflict the world ever knew, the Veterans of Foreign Wars tonight will rally at "Le Panthéon de la Guerre," being presented by Harry M. Crandall in the Panorama Building, New Jersey avenue and C street. The military band of the V. F. W., augmented by its Fife and Drum Corps, will give a concert beginning at 8 o'clock and continuing through the evening. The band will be under the direction of Capt. Alvin I. Loring.

As a bit of anticipatory promotion in behalf of "The Roar of the Dragon," starring Richard Dix and introducing the screen's newest "find," Gwili Andre, scheduled for RKO-Keith's the week beginning next Friday, Manager Hardie Meakin has installed a lobby display even more strikingly picturesque than his jungle decorations for "Bring 'Em Back Alive."

The new display, on view to all and sundry since last Saturday evening, embraces one tile from the Ming tomb, one chandelier made from an old Chinese wood carving, a mirror of like construction, two lamps made from poles once carried in Chinese religious processions, one Tibetan chest, two drums used in a Buddhist temple, one antique idol from Fwochow, one tapestry presented to the Vice-Royal Li on his birthday, one 8-foot bronze Chinese pagoda, a great number of tapestries from the provinces of Shan, Burma, Fwochow and Peiping; lamps and idols and Tibetan paintings and hand-painted chests.

The collection is valued at $5,000, and is on exhibition at RKO-Keith's through the courtesy of Mr. Albert J. Osgood, of Washington.

Speaking of RKO-Keith's, there are some interesting unprogrammed players who may be fleetingly observed in "Attorney for the Defense," the current feature, by those with quick vision. Cast in the brief role of the doctor, who is momentarily placed on the witness stand, is Pat O'Malley, not so long ago one of the screen's popular leading men, now reduced to "bits." In the sequence immediately preceding the opening of the trial, Irving Cummings, the director of the picture, does a bit on the telephone and will be instantly recognized by the fans who still remember when he was a popular leading man in Monte Bell's stock company at the old Shubert-Garrick Theater.

What with the opening day crowds and all, an orchestra chair in the center section on the cross-aisle was the best I was able to manage at Loew's Fox on Friday afternoon. From that (disad)vantage point, listen as intently as I was able—and I can hear a penny drop as far as anybody, even on a thick-pile carpet—I could not catch one word of Phil Lampkin's overture announcement. There seems to be a big difference in audibility between speaking from the floor of the house and from the stage. Not that it matters, since the overture sounded swell, anyway.

If you are afraid today may be stickier than yesterday, I can comfort you by lifting a much-quoted page from the book of Samuel Goldwyn, who is reputed once to have brought an important conference to a close by banging his fist on the table and shouting, "Gentlemen, I can answer you in two words:

"Impossible!"

TALK ON ADAM'S SIN MADE BEFORE GUILD

Catholic Women Council's Head Speaks on Original Error at Meeting.

"There is no more logical explanation to be found anywhere of the difficulties and disorders in the story of man than that offered by the teaching of the Catholic Church on original sin," said Miss Mary G. Hawks, national president of the National Council of Catholic Women, speaking at yesterday afternoon's public open-air meeting of the Catholic Evidence Guild on the campus of Catholic University. Miss Hawks went on to say:

"When God created Adam, He gave him a special gift, a gift that was not part of his nature, that did not belong to him necessarily as a man, but was truly an extraordinary gift of God's goodnes and love.

Gift Known As Grace.

"This gift made man holy, capable of friendship and intercourse with God. Catholics call this gift grace, something added to our natural powers by the gracious love of God to make us holy like Himself. The facts show us Adam and Eve had full knowledge of God's command, full knowledge of God's generosity, and full knowledge of the punishment that was attached to disobedience of the command of God.

"But," continued Miss Hawks, "hostile critics say, 'What was it to eat a piece of fruit?' To say this is to admit a point of view inherited from Adam. For as the Bible story shows, the eating of the fruit was due to distrust of God, the denial that He is all-true; to pride, the denial that He is all-great; and to disobedience, the denial that He is all-good in His commands.

"The condition into which Adam's free choice of his own will threw him continues even until now. The fine balance between the gifts of reason and the things of sense has been broken.

Evidence of God's Love.

"In the teaching of the Catholic Church regarding original sin, we find the strongest evidence of God's unfailing love for man. As St. Paul tells us, 'By one man came death, and by a man the resurrection of the dead. And as in Adam all die, so also in Christ all shall be made alive.' The church teaches that because of his disobedience, Adam paid for himself and his descendants the penalty of disordered powers and of death, that all human beings come into the world with the mark of original sin upon them that they are unable to regain that original justice that Adam lost except through that 'baptism for the remission of sins established by Christ.' "

Miss Mary Bowen, who recently returned to the United States after work in the Catholic Evidence Guild of London, talked on her experiences.

FLAG WILL BE GIVEN TO TRAINING SCHOOL

Legion to Present Regimental Colors at Ceremony Next Saturday.

Regimental colors will be presented to the school regiment of the National Training School for Boys, Rhode Island avenue and Evarts street northeast, Saturday afternoon by Department Commander F. G. Fraser, of the American Legion of the District of Columbia.

There will be a ball game on the school grounds at 2 o'clock, followed by a competitive drill of the companies of the regiment. Judges will select the company that gives the best military performance and a testimonial cup presented to the winner. This will be followed by the presentation of the colors to the regiment and the entire organization will then pass in formal review before the assemblage.

This action is in the nature of a follow-up program carrying forward a movement begun a year ago by the local Legion organization, when the then commander, B. C. MacNeil, presented the regiment with the national colors.

The school band will give selections, and an address of welcome will be given by Col. Claude D. Jones, superintendent of the school. Other addresses will be given by James Kehoe, Judge Robert E. Mattingly and Vice President Charles Curtis. Isaac Gans will present the cup.

PASTOR SAYS WORLD IS AT CROSS ROADS

Baptist Cleric Holds Lesson of World War Ignored by Civilization.

"Civilization has reached the cross-roads," said the Rev. Hugh T. Stevenson, pastor of the Bethany Baptist Church, speaking at the Temple Heights Masonic service yesterday afternoon.

"We are called upon to travel an unknown road that has not been marked upon the map of time. In this moment we should stop and think, seek guidance from above before undertaking to pass over the highway of tomorrow.

"History has been well called His story teaching men by example.

Problems Mostly Financial.

"Instead of the nations of the earth heeding the message of the World War, summoning them in their suffering and sorrow to repent and put their faith in God, they have sought gold. The perplexing problems of men have been financial. They have failed to see in the experience of recent years that culture, represented by Germany, failed to prevent war.

"Men have claimed that the Church and Christianity have failed. In this moment permit me to insist that some churches may have failed but Christianity has not failed because it has not been tried. When men commence to seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, then faith that has been a neglected factor, if not an unknown factor, will become a vital part in our lives. The lack of faith is the cause that has undermined business, destroyed credit, broken down the family life and crippled our religious life.

Religious Revival Needed.

"Some years ago the editor of the Wall Street Journal with true prophetic vision pointed out that we needed a revival of religion. If the principles of Masonry, religion, and our country are to endure men must get right with God and let faith become the dominant factor in our lives. When this age finds itself, it will be responding to the clarion call of our Lord, just as Abraham went forth from Ur of the Chaldees seeking the unknown promised land. Our fathers crossed the unchartered Atlantic in response to a spiritual urge that called them to seek a place where God could be worshiped in spirit and in truth," the pastor declared.

Capital Will Celebrate Postoffice Anniversary

The date is the 157th anniversary of the adoption by the Continental Congress of a resolution establishing the continental post and naming Benjamin Franklin as the first Postmaster General of the United States.
